SUMMARY.

Messages continue to arrive from Berlin indicating that Liebknecht's followers are endeavouring to foment a revolution.

General indications, however, show that the Spartacus group is unable to overthrow the present Government.

It is reported that Russian Bolsheviks are arriving in Berlin to assist the revolt.

The Paris correspondent of the United Press states that the Peace Conference is expected to begin on January 3.

It is reported that President Wilson will not sit at the Peace Conference, but will remain in France for consultation.

Scenes of indescribable joy marked the occasion of President Poincare's ceremonious entry into Metz.

A moving moment occurred when M. Poincare publicly clasped and embraced M. Clemenceau.

The occupation of the city took place two days before the schedule time, in response to the Burgomaster's appeal.

The Soviets had tried to overthrow the civil authorities.

American troops are hastening in trains to Coblenz, where Bolshevism is rampant.

A sanguinary encounter occurred between the Red Guards and the Black Hussars returning from the front.

The Hussars, following the commander's lead, fired on a municipal deputation of welcome.

President Poincare was met by the municipal authorities, Ministers, Senators, and Deputies at Strassburg.

The Mayor handed the keys of the city to the President, who declared that France would never give them up.

Sir Douglas Haig, in a communique, states: The British have reached the Rhine, between Cologne and Godesberg.

The Spartacus group has concentrated in Berlin the best organisers in the whole country.

The Republican Guard and the military now occupy the Invalid-den-Strasse, many railway stations, and notable quarters.

The German Government is daily receiving hundreds of telegrams from returning soldiers supporting the present regime.

The Soldiers and Workmen's Council will carry on only until a national assembly is formed.

A supreme council, numbering six, is the superior body, and will nominate peace delegates to meet the Allies.

Herr Scheidemann says the early election of a national assembly is necessary to enable Germany to give guarantees of stability.

The Assembly must also consider the question of establishing a State tribunal to try persons guilty of causing the war.

The Republic of Schleswig-Holstein, within the German Empire, is about to be proclaimed.

Herr Erzberger announces that the French have requested the German Army Command to designate plenipotentiaries to discuss the prolongation of the armistice.

The ex-Emperor of Austria is living in retirement at the Chateau Eckartsau, under surveillance of the revolutionary police.

He is subjected to food restrictions and is much depressed. He suffers from great nervousness.

The position in the quarantine area continues to improve.

No deaths were reported yesterday, nor were there any new admissions to the hospital.

The Medic is due for release at 6 o'clock this evening, all being well. She has 114 healthy troops on board.

It was announced in the House of Representatives that ministers of religion would be allowed to enter the Quarantine Station.

The Federal Cabinet adopted the finding of the commission that there was no evidence to connect Mr. Jensen with the receipt of money in connection with the acquisition of the Shaw Wireless Works.

It was decided, however, that the matters disclosed in the report rendered it undesirable that he should remain in the Government.

The Cabinet accordingly asked Mr. Jensen to resign, but he declined to do so.

Mr. Jensen announced in the House of Representatives last night, that he had been ousted from the Ministry.

Last night was private members' night in the Legislative Assembly. It was also the last night of the session.

Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., was heard at the Bar of the House last night in defence of the members of the Public Service Board.

A bill was introduced to retire the members of the board, with suitable compensation, and to appoint their successors.

The question of the reduction of the alcoholic strength of beer is under the consideration of the Minister for Public Health.

The Premier was asked in the Assembly if he would appoint a Royal Commissioner to inquire into the tram men's grievances.

Mr. Buckley stated that a strike was being mooted in the service.

The Premier replied that the attempts made to call meetings and foment a strike had been singularly unsuccessful.

Alderman English, the newly-elected Lord Mayor, says the one fixed purpose he has in his mind is to make Greater Sydney a reality.

"I have no fads or fancies, and no pet schemes," he said yesterday; "my time will be fully occupied with the Labour platform."

The use of mechanical sprinklers and fixed hoses for watering gardens and lawns is prohibited for the present.

This step has been taken on account of the abnormal spell of dry weather, and the heavy increase in water consumption.

An exhibition of work of the Fort-street Junior Technical and Domestic Science Schools was opened yesterday by Mr. Board.

A meeting of members of the Sailors' and Soldiers' Mothers, Wives, and Relations' Association discussed the deportation of Germans.

A motion urging the deportation of all Germans, naturalised or otherwise, was carried.

The meeting also urged that female lift attendants be dispensed with, and returned soldiers unfit for other work be substituted.

Mr. Justice Sly held that the conviction of the Manly aldermen in the matter of free passes on the Manly ferries was wrong.

The magistrate's decision was accordingly set aside. Mr. Justice Sly reserved his reasons for the time being.

The Royal Commissioner's report on the administration of the Cattle Tick Act was tabled in Parliament yesterday.

The present regulations with regard to travelling stock, it is stated, afford a sufficient safeguard if rigidly enforced.

For the control of straying stock, particularly bulls, however, they were not sufficient.

The Red Cross Hospital Handicrafts Exhibition was opened by Lady Davidson yesterday.

The question of hostels for working girls was discussed yesterday. Lady Helen Munro Ferguson expressed approval of the scheme.

The hostels, her Excellency thought, should be planned on the lines of a real home, and should set a high standard.

The continuation of the restriction of trade under the War Precautions Act is strongly opposed by the grain trade in Melbourne.

A cricket team to represent New South Wales against Victoria at Melbourne on Boxing Day has been selected.

The Makura, due on Friday, will bring 3992 bags of English, American, and Canadian mails.

High temperatures were again recorded in the country districts yesterday.

At Bourke 114 was registered, Walgett 110, Forbes 107, Wilcannia 106, and Wagga 100.

"MARY'S CHRISTMAS PARTY"

AGAIN AT 4.15 P.M. TO-DAY.

DISPLAY THEATRE, FIRST FLOOR.
Children under fifteen, but not in arms, will be admitted for the rest of the week.

Again Mlle. d'Alroy will appear in "Mary's Christmas Party" to-day. The well-filled houses of the two preceding days have been very encouraging. So overwhelmingly popular has "Mary's Christmas Party" become in the Juvenile world that the management has decided to admit children when accompanied by parents or guardians. Balloons will be presented by Father Christmas as during last week.
MLLE. D'ALROY.
In a novel and entertaining way Mlle d'Alroy points out the various features of excellence of a score or more dainty little dresses. The ten guests at the party include girls of all ages, so that a wide range of styles is covered, and, since the playlet is staged in three acts, morning, afternoon and evening, dresses for the young are featured. It is all worth seeing.
Every adult who has the matter of Juvenile Clothing at heart will be supplied with much food for thought—and, moreover, will arrive at the conviction that Farmer's have gone far and carefully into the subject.

TICKETS OBTAINABLE FREE IN THE TOY DEPARTMENT, FIRST FLOOR.

Tickets are given out in the Toy Department, First Floor, to Children as well as adults intending to be present at "Mary's Christmas Party." Although these tickets are given free, it is essential that each should possess one.
Remember, adults must be accompanied by children to gain admittance.

THE IDEAL HOLIDAY WEAR FOR GROWING GIRLS.

You will be doubly sure that the White Frock, so fresh and soft and pure, is, indeed, the ideal holiday wear for growing girls when you see the following creations from Farmer's. The prices alone should attract the attention of mothers; but there is an appealing simplicity about the styles that parents look for when choosing their growing girls' costumes. Study the following four descriptions:—
The first is a SIMPLE WHITE FROCK for a growing girl. It is made in good quality Voile; skirt has deep hem at foot and is softly gathered at waist-line and finished neat belt with buckle and sash ends. The bodice has pretty sailor collar opening to revers, ornamented with groups of crochet buttons. Size, 45 inches. PRICE 19/11

ARLINGTON TAILOR-MADE SKIRTS AT WHOLESALE PRICE.

Whether you pay two guineas or four guineas for your Arlington Skirt, we guarantee that it will be tailor-made, finished with absolute thoroughness, and the fit incomparably superior to what you would get elsewhere at a much higher price.

Unlike other tailors, who make one profit from the material and another out of the making of their garments, our profit comes from our materials only, a nominal charge being made to cover workroom costs for making.

You therefore pay only one profit to us, and this is on the material, which we charge to you at WHOLESALE PRICE.

This effects a saving to YOU of from 25 to 50 per cent. Apart from the saving in money, we submit to you styles that you cannot obtain elsewhere, as they are the creation of our own designers.

PAINLESS DENTISTRY.

PLATES THAT FIT

and are natural in appearance are all you can desire if you have lost your natural teeth.

When a plate fits, it leaves nothing to be desired. All the essential requirements of a perfect plate are incorporated in the one that FITS. The one that doesn't fit is the one that causes the worry.

If you have lost your natural teeth and order plates from us, THEY WILL FIT, and fitting concisely will give you as nearly as humanly possible all the advantages of natural teeth.

I invite you to submit yourself to me for dental examination, free of charge, then you have a guidea at the very start. If any extractions are necessary, I can assure you the correct tooth without a twinge of pain. If you have teeth that are capable of recovery by painless methods, filling, pivot, or crown work. When you consult me, you get an honest opinion. If you do not require any I shall be the first to suspect. My scale of fees will save you money, suit your requirements, and I ask you to call for my free advice any day between 9 and 4, Wednesday or Friday evening, before 9 p.m., or Saturday afternoon before 5.30. SECOND-HAND BUICKS.

Last week we explained the manner in which we rebuild, so to speak, our Second-hand Buicks. To take in a used Buick, paint it, and sell it again, is a risky transaction on our part. We are a big firm of repute.

As motor cars—like all machinery—do require repairs—we do know what repairs are necessary to Buicks—to put them in that order to protect our name. That is why we sell Buicks only.

If we took in all makes our reputation might suffer, for we are not as well acquainted with other makes as our own, and we would not be expected to know what to look for. This is just the difference between specialising and jobbing in anything.

As a result of last week's advertisement we sold several cars, some of which were inspected by independent engineers.

REMEMBER, every make of car, according to our experience, requires something to be done after a certain distance of use, and that something is remedied in the Buicks we sell.

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

I DO not blame anyone for wanting to keep away from dentists who make their patients suffer, but there is no excuse for a person neglecting his teeth when he knows he can have them fixed without pain. By coming to me you will avoid all torture in the dental chair. Call at my waiting-room and converse with actual patients. I am willing and eager to abide by their decisions. Why not call to-day? My wonderful apparatus enables me to prepare, fill, crown, treat, and extract the most sensitive tooth without causing a particle of pain. I guarantee to extract without pain, and will forfeit £5 to any patient I hurt. I do high-class dental work of every description, and back it with an ironclad guarantee of satisfaction. I make a specialty of restoring lost teeth with plate or bridge work. If you have at least two good teeth left in either of your jaws, you can avoid a plate, and get the missing ones replaced by Bridge Work. My dental work carries a written guarantee in force for five years. If any rare fault should develop in that time I repair it free of charge. Let me give you a free examination, and tell you what work is required and what it will cost. I'll gladly explain my methods without obligation on your part. Consultation is free to all. Terms can be arranged. Open till 6 p.m. daily (Sats. included). Until 9 p.m. Friday; Half-holiday Wed. DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES, Orchard's Corner, George-street, opp. Railway.

THE CASE FOR THE CROWN

BY FRED M. WHITE.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

CHAPTER XXXII.
IN THE ROOF.

A bell rang somewhere in the distance, and, with a word or two of apology, Gunter hurried off. Chim Fang turned at the same time, and Archenfield followed him, feeling that there was nothing more to be done for the moment. So, side by side, they made their way back again to the carpeted seats which were dignified by the name of stalls, and then, for the best part of an hour, watched the performance. It was, on the whole, a depressing show, and Archenfield would have turned his back upon it at an early stage of the proceedings had he not been convinced that Chim Fang had brought him here for some very definite purpose.

Then, at length, the ring was cleared, and the attendants in their gaudy uniforms busied themselves with the erection of a net that covered the whole of the space in the centre of the tent. Other assistants, with the aid of ropes and pulleys, raised what appeared to be a small wooden house fronted by a balcony, and fixed it more or less securely to the roof of the tent. Presently in this wooden structure a girl appeared. She was dressed in white, her hair hung all down her back, and she was evidently intended to be the heroine of the romantic drama. Her hands and feet were fettered, and she had something white in her mouth, obviously a gag. On the programme the episode was described as "Mary of the Lonely Tower." The audience understood from the programme that here was a persecuted young woman who was kept, gagged and bound, in confinement by some desperate villain who had imprisoned her there away from her friends until such time, presumably, as she consented either to marry him or to disclose the hiding-place of a hidden treasure. So far the plot of the story was clear enough, and it became clearer still when presently, some twenty-five feet away in the roof of the tent, a canvas structure was hauled up, and intended to represent the top of a rocky precipice from which the rescuers could view the unfortunate lady in her bower separated from them by a huge gulf that loomed between them. The mimic rock was an overhanging one, some twenty feet or so above the bower in which suffering beauty was confined, and presently the two Chinamen appeared on the summit of the rock. To them the gagged young woman made frantic signs that they should come and release her. And so, for a time, the drama went on, with perplexity on one side and imploring gestures on the other.

Chim Fang was leaning forward with his eyes glittering, and Archenfield could see that he was more excited than usual.

"Is this what you brought me to see?" he asked.

"That's it, master," Chim Fang said. "You watch. And presently I tell you what I think."

With which Chim Fang lapsed into silence again. That there was something more than a cheap and flashy sensation behind what was going on up there in the roof, Archenfield was convinced. It was no use to press Chim Fang, no use to try and hurry him, for he would tell everything in his own time and in his own peculiar and mysterious way. So Archenfield watched the performance with more than usual interest. He saw, presently, that the actors up there on the rock had thought out a plan, for presently one of them produced a rope, which he proceeded to attach to the rock, and then slid down nearly to the end of it. Presently the rope began to work like a pendulum, swinging slowly backwards and forwards until the man clinging there could almost touch the balcony opposite where the girl with the long hair was watching him in mingled delight and terror. But it transpired presently that the rope was not long enough to touch the balcony, and that apparently the efforts of the two heroes were in vain. A sea of upturned faces watched the performance with breathless silence, and the spectators gasped presently as the second man slid down the rope until he reached his companion, and then began to work below him until at length he had grasped the other by the ankles. Then, once more, the rope began to oscillate to and fro, until presently it touched the balcony opposite, and the lower Chinaman, relaxing his grip of the colleague's ankles, flung himself forward, and clutched the rail in front of the balcony. Then, amidst thunders of applause, he climbed over and took the swooning heroine in his arms, and with that the thrilling turn ended.

Apart from the excitement, it was a clever enough performance, neat and daring, despite the fact that there was a net underneath in case of accidents. Presently the acrobats reached the ground, and stood bowing their acknowledgments before they disappeared from the ring.

"Clever enough," Archenfield said. "But I quite fail to see the point of that, Chim Fang. Do you mean to say that it has got anything to do with the task we have before us?"

"Yes, master," Chim Fang said quietly. "I think it has. I can't say yet, and we can't say until we know for certain. If I am not wrong, there is another what you call tragedy not far off. But we can do nothing to stop it, because these police of yours will never listen to what I could tell them. The police will not interfere in a case of suspicion. But I believe Flint is in great danger."

"Can you interfere at all?" Archenfield asked.

"Perhaps master, perhaps not. But I can try. I came here last night because I had to stay here on your orders and I had an hour or two to spare. Besides, I wanted to feel sure that the Chinamen were still here with the circus. And to-day when I keep them in view I learned something, master. Then I asked you to come and see for yourself."

"Oh, well, Chim Fang, you must do things your own way, I suppose," Archenfield said. "You are generally right. But you can tell me as we drive back this evening."

"I am not driving back with you this evening, master," Chim Fang said in his impassive way. "There is much I have to do before I return to the House on the River in the morning. But it is not time to speak yet, perhaps in the end I shall never have reason to speak. But you go your way, master, and I will go mine. You trust Chim Fang."

"I am certain to do that," Archenfield said. "And now, is there anything else you want to show me, because, if not, I will get back home? I have much to do before I sleep."

Without reply, Chim Fang got up from his seat, and the two made their way towards the door of the tent. As they did so, a sudden volume of smoke impelled by the draught came bursting into the tent, and immediately behind it Archenfield could see a long tongue of yellow flame. Then some excitable woman cried out "Fire!" and in an instant the whole place was in confusion. But, fortunately, there was no panic, and the audience was safely got out in a few minutes; but, meanwhile, the fire, which had been caused by the overturning of a big flare lamp, had got a good grip on some of the tents behind where the horses and the animals were stabled, and then, for a quarter of an hour or more, there was a scene of the most intense excitement. Fortunately, there was an ample supply of water at hand, so that at the end of half an hour the flames were all extinguished, and Gunter, with blackened face and hands, was ruefully contemplating the damage.

"Well, it might have been worse," he said. "Anyhow, I am insured, but I don't see how we're going to give another performance under a week. It will take all that to repair the big tent. But I haven't lost anything."

"Here, where's Hiko?" Mrs. Gunter cried. "He was in his cage half an hour ago."

"Good Lord!" Gunter cried. "I wouldn't have anything happen to the chimpanzee for a fortune."

As Gunter spoke a forlorn-looking object, drenched and frightened, crept from under the ruins of one of the tents and looked up appealingly into Archenfield's face. He stooped down and caressed the great simian and offered him a cigarette.

"Let me take him," he said. "Hiko knows me as well as he knows you, and I know exactly how to feed him. Let me have him for a day or two. My sister-in-law will be delighted. He can't stay here in this mess."

It looked almost as if the chimpanzee knew what was being said, for he snuggled up to Archenfield and put those long arms of his round his waist.

"All right, Hiko," Archenfield said. "Don't you worry; I'll look after you for the present."

WATER CONSERVATION.

ALBURY, Tuesday.

The selection of the Ebden site for the purposes of the impounding wall of the Upper Murray water conservation scheme has given great satisfaction here, as the site is the nearest to Albury of the two dozen sites that were tested. It is proposed to build the wall immediately below the junction of the Mitta Mitta with the Murray about six miles in a direct line from Albury. Landowners on the Mitta Mitta complain that the carrying out of the scheme will entail the loss of thousands of acres of the best river flats on the Upper Murray, as the Mitta Mitta flats will be submerged to within four miles of Tallangatta. For some time survey staffs have been hard at work getting out the preliminary data, and it is understood that now that the war is over, no time will be lost in starting the works.

On Saturday, the 7th, a most successful bazaar was held by Miss Mollie Bird, assisted by girl friends, in the grounds of Trebartha, Darling Point. As a result a substantial cheque has been handed in to the 1st, 10th, and 13th F.A.B. Comforts Fund.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

RED CROSS HOSPITAL HANDICRAFTS.

The Red Cross Hospital Handicrafts Exhibition was opened at the new quarters, Camden-buildings, George-street, yesterday afternoon by Lady Davidson. Her Excellency was received by Miss Collin, director of hospital handicrafts, and the committee. Lady Davidson drew attention to the exhibits from other States, and said that next year it was hoped that these would have considerably increased in number. Miss Gladys Owen, who proposed a vote of thanks to Lady Davidson, spoke of the great benefits that the sick and wounded soldiers are deriving from the handicrafts, and made a stirring appeal for teachers to assist in the instruction of the men. Miss Owen pointed out that the teachers need not necessarily be professionals, but that the skilled amateur in each and every department would find ample opportunity for service. The speaker paid a high tribute to the teachers that are already engaged in the work, especially to those professionals who devote every hour of their already restricted leisure to the training of the men in the various hospitals.

The honour boards were the most prominent articles in the exhibition, partly because of their imposing size and the bold design of their workmanship. The designs in each case were those of Miss Mary Makinson, one of the first teachers of woodcarving to the sick and wounded men. The honour board for the Wagga Experimental Farm measures 10ft x 5ft. It is made of oak, panelled and morticed, and shows a design of Western Australian gum nuts and leaves surmounted with the A.I.F. badge, and the coat-of-arms of the farm. About 300 names are inscribed, and the motto of the college is to be added. The work was executed by Corporal Brenneke, who received his first tuition at Randwick about 18 months ago. It is difficult to credit that Cpl. Brenneke had learnt so recently, for his has quite a professional touch. He has carved about 10 honour boards. Private Williams, who has already been prominent as the maker of the lectern purchased by Miss Eadith Walker for the Walker Hospital, exhibited a carved honour board that is one of a pair being made for St. Augustine's Church, Inverell. The board was also of oak, with a design of gum nuts and leaves. Private Major was unfortunately unable to complete his exhibit, but the finished portions were shown, and attracted considerable attention. This exhibitor worked eight of the 10 benefactors' boards installed by the Red Cross Society in the sanitorium at Wentworth Falls.

Others exhibits included needlework, raffia, leather work, drawings, beadwork, chip and relief woodcarving. The needlework generally, conceded to be purely a feminine occupation, was wonderfully executed. A pair of babies' shoes, embroidered in blue, attracted the admiration of the visitors. The exhibits from Melbourne and Brisbane were all of a high standard, and included samples of needlework, woodcarving, and leather work.

The prize winners were as follows:—Section A (New South Welchmen only): Coloured needlework, Pte. Hutton; white needlework, Pte. Cox; woodcarving, relief, Pte. Owen (highly commended, Pte. Major); tooled and stained leather work, Pte. Tucker (highly commended, Sgt. Barford and Pte. Lording), suede leather work, Corporal Hielman; best article made from material costing not more than 3/, Sgt. Barford and Pte. Wickenden; special needlework, Pte. Hard and Pte. Stack. Section B: Raffia, Trooper Laves; coloured needlework, Pte. Shirtevant (Vic.); white needlework, Pte. Hobkinson (Q.); woodcarving, relief, Pte. Hill (N.S.W.) (highly recommended, Ptes. Major and Owen, N.S.W.); chip carving, Pte. Greenfield (Q.); tooled and stained leather work, Pte. Anderson; suede leather work, Pte. Tucker (N.S.W.).

HOSTELS FOR GIRLS.

MOVEMENT IN SYDNEY.

Yesterday afternoon a conference was held in the assembly room, Education-buildings, when the question of hostels for working girls was discussed. Her Excellency, Lady Helen Munro Ferguson presided.

In opening the conference Lady Helen expressed her deep and earnest approval of the scheme. Hostels had already been established in Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, and Hobart. Every big city always claimed many hundreds of girls, the majority of these without homes. The cities were always attractive to every girl in search of amusement, and every day there were fresh batches coming in to take up different kinds of occupations. If they wished to understand the real need for hostels, they should imagine the lonely and friendless girl in uncongenial surroundings, with no place she could designate her own. True, she might be amply supplied, so far as necessaries were concerned, but it was impossible to live on necessaries alone. Girls could not lead monotonous lives—they craved for companionship, and the little feminine touches which meant so much to every woman. Lady Helen quoted the impressions of a Frenchman, who went through the camps of the "Waacs" in France. The women lived under the same conditions as the men, yet there was that about the huts which at once told of the feelings for those small bits of home which were exemplified in the flowers and those womanly touches which had accompanied the workers right to within sound of the guns. The hostels should be planned on the lines of a real home, and should set a high standard. She urged the meeting to back the movement with all the enthusiasm of which it was capable.

Professor Mackie spoke on "The Need of Hostels from the Students' Point of View;" the need from the point of view of the business and commercial girl being voiced by Miss M. E. Roberts. The first resolution which was moved by Mr. Francis Anderson, and seconded by Miss Mallarky, was as follows:—"That this meeting, recognising the need of suitable residences for girls engaged in various occupations in Sydney, advocates the erection of hostels, provided and controlled by religious and other bodies, which have their interest at heart."

The resolution was carried unanimously.

EXHIBITION OF SCHOOL WORK.

An interesting exhibition of work of the Fort-street Junior Technical and Domestic Science Schools, was opened yesterday morning by Mr. P. Board, M.A.

In an address Mr. Board expressed his appreciation of the exhibitions and congratulated the students on their work. He specially urged both boys and girls to complete the two years' course. The exhibition was well worthy of admiration. In the boys' section there was much originality shown, the work, with a few exceptions, being done by boys of 15 and under. All branches of carpentry were shown, a beautifully turned-out music stool, executed by a lad of 14, being worthy of much praise. Other crafts' shows were inlay work, beaten copper, and brass, tin work of all kinds, house designing, machine drawing, and so on.

The girls' sections were devoted to china painting, botany, home decorating, laundry work, example of table setting, to encourage refinement in homes, needlework, stencilling, the keeping of household accounts, bookkeeping, and so on. The really practical side of housewifery had not been omitted, and examples of how woodwork, metalwork, and so on, should be properly scoured, formed one of the sections.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

A brief note has been delivered to the secretary of the "Herald" and "Mail" War Chest Day Fund, which says: "Please find enclosed the sum of £1/6/6, the proceeds from a doll's bazaar given by the undersigned children in aid of the War Chest Fund. With best wishes for a merry Christmas from Winnie Price, Eva Wood, Wingie Turner, Dulcie Booth, Jean Lansdowne." These little workers are to be congratulated upon the success attending their enterprise. It goes to prove the results that can be obtained by organised effort, stimulated by the desire to help our soldier boys.

A display of articles suitable for Christmas gifts was opened in the Ladies' Home Mission Union offices, Diocesan Church House, yesterday afternoon, and will be continued until Thursday. The display is being held under the auspices of the Ladies' Home Mission Union, and has for its president Mrs. J. C. Wright and secretary Miss W. R. Ohlson.

The Trench Mortar Batteries Comforts Fund Depot is closing for vacation at the end of this week, and will reopen on February 11. The committee is appealing for gifts of articles suitable for the jumble sales, which have been a considerable help towards augmenting the funds. Parcels may be addressed to the depot, Bull's-chambers, and left with the lift attendant.

Although everyone is now thinking of celebrating the brightest Christmas since 1913, and sending greetings to friends far and wide, it will not be forgotten there are many appeals being made by the hospitals, which have suffered considerably from lack of support during the war. Instead of Christmas cards, tickets in the Women's Hospital art union would be most acceptable, and, as well as entitling the holder to a chance of winning one of the valuable and attractive prizes offered, would also assist one of the best charities in our midst. Prizes include complete kitchen furniture and equipment, 12-month scholarships in music, shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping, jewellery, furs, pictures, hand-knitted baby's layette, open cash orders on Sydney firms, etc. Books of tickets containing 11 at 10/ may be obtained on application to Miss Mona Daley, secretary Women's Hospital, Crown-street.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO JURY COURT.

(Before Sir William Cullen and jury.)

CHILD INJURED BY MANGLE.

O'Malley v Birney.

The plaintiff in this case, John Edmund O'Malley, an infant, 6 years of age, sued by his next friend to recover from Annie Birney, boarding-house keeper, of Hampden Villa, Katoomba, the sum of £100 damages, for personal injuries, due, as alleged, to the negligence of the defendant. It appeared that the plaintiff and his mother were boarding at the defendant's place at Katoomba, and that the child, while playing in a yard attached to the boarding-house, injured himself badly in a mangle, which, the plaintiff suggested, ought to have been secured. The defendant, in addition to a plea of not guilty, alleged that the child at the time of the accident was in his mother's care, and the mishap was due to her lack of attention.

Mr. Harper (instructed by Mr. R. A. Monro King) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. James (instructed by Mr. F. W. Lee) for the defendant.

The case was tried on Monday, and the jury found for the defendant, and not for the plaintiff, as previously stated.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury.)

ALLEGED MISREPRESENTATION.

Storm v Snell.

The plaintiff in this action, Eric Storm, sued Charles Ferdinand Snell claiming £1000 compensation for alleged fraudulent representations subsequent to and connected with a transaction for the purchase of an interest by the plaintiff in a business known as the Pure Food Pastry Supply Company, in Lord-street, Newtown and further misrepresentations regarding partnership matters and the retail connections of the business. A second count of the declaration claimed the return of £201/1/, money alleged to have been received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff and retained. As to the first claim, the defendant pleaded not guilty, and to the second, never indebted. Mr. Hardwick (instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Coyle (instructed by Messrs. J. A. I. Perry, Dent and Co.) for the defendant.

The case is part heard.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly.)

MANLY ALDERMEN REINSTATED.

Smith v Railton and others.

An appeal on a case stated, on behalf of George Alfred Railton, Francis William Heaton, Adam Ogilvie, Arthur Thomas Kevile, Ellison Wentworth Quirk, George Dumbrell, and James Kirk Purves, formerly aldermen of the Municipality of Manly, against a decision of Mr. C. N. Payten, S.M., convicting the appellants of a charge of acting in the office of aldermen while disqualified under the provisions of Section 70 of the Local Government Act of 1906, on the ground that they were at the time of so acting directly or indirectly interested in a certain contract and agreement between the Manly Council and the Port Jackson and Manly Steamship Company, relating to the carriage of passengers and cargo from and to Manly for reward. The proceedings in the lower court have been fully reported. The magistrate held that as the aldermen used free passes on the ferries of the annual value of £4 10s, forwarded to them by the company, they were guilty of the offence charged, and fined each of them £50 with costs, in default, four months' imprisonment, with hard labour. Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Chubb (instructed by Mr. R. T. Smyth King) appeared for the appellants; and Mr. Watt and Mr. Ferguson (instructed by Mr. A. J. Macaulay) for the respondent Francis Edward Barton Smith, president of the Manly and District Progress Association, at whose instance the prosecution was brought.

Mr Campbell, for the appellants, contended that the fact of the aldermen holding free passes did not give them any greater interest in the company's business than would be acquired by a person who had procured a season ticket by purchase.

Mr. Watt argued that if any contractor were found to be subsidising an alderman, clearly such alderman would be disqualified under the Act, and the present case could not be distinguished from that. The magistrate was perfectly entitled to give the decision he did, and although incidentally questions of law did arise, it was largely a matter of fact. The magistrate had found that the aldermen were interested to the extent of £4 8s per annum, and he submitted, that being so, they brought themselves within the prohibition of the statute.

His Honor expressed the opinion that the magistrate's decision was erroneous and that the convictions must be set aside, and costs paid by the respondent. His Honor reserved his reasons for the time being.

ALLEGED FORGERIES.

At the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. M'Kensey, S.M., John Foley, 40, a labourer, and May Livingstone, 28, were charged with having, on November 22, without lawful excuse, a number of forged Commonwealth bank notes of the denomination of £5.

The evidence was that Detectives Wilson, Anderson, Miller, and Mairs went to a house at Lawson-street, Paddington, on November 22. Looking through a window, Detective Wilson saw Foley tearing up something and throwing it into a receptacle. After entering the house, the detectives found a number of mutilated £5 notes.

Thomas S. Harrison, bank note printer for the Commonwealth Government, said that the note remnants represented from 15 to 20 £5 notes, which were forgeries. He said that they were a portion of the lot made by members of the I.W.W. at Maroubra in 1916.

The accused, who reserved their defence, were committed for trial.

The accused were then charged with forging a £5 Commonwealth bank note, but on the application of the police the charge was withdrawn.

A third charge of having forged a number of totalisator tickets, with intent to defraud, to which each of the accused pleaded not guilty, was preferred against them.

Detective Miller said that when the detectives raided accused's residence at Lawson-street, Paddington, he secured some tickets from the female accused's hand. They were torn in three parts. He found on a dressing table in the bedroom eight bottles of ink, a number of ink pads, and other materials.

The manager of the totalisator at Randwick said that seven of the tickets produced in Court were forgeries. The stamps and inks (produced) could be used for putting the horse numbers on the ticket.

Charles Henry Vine, who was employed on the totalisator at the Randwick racecourse on April 13, said a man in uniform presented some tickets at his window which had the winning numbers stamped on them. Earlier in the day he had been warned to keep a look-out for forgeries, and consequently he did not pay on them.

Further evidence having been given, both the accused were committed for trial.

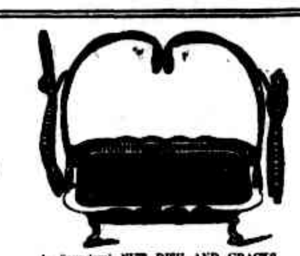

On a further charge of having, between September 29 and September 30, broken and entered the business premises of Price and Jardine at Kent-street, Sydney, and stolen 228 9-carat gold toothpicks, 136 gold bangles, 16 gold armlets, 849 gold brooches, 422 gold rings, and other jewellery, of the total value of £1300, both the accused were remanded.

INFLUENZA

Its Seriousness to Humanity and the Best Way to Guard Against it

¶ According to medical reports cabled from all the great centres of civilisation, and from the conditions existing in New Zealand and New South Wales to-day, a very serious epidemic of influenza is ravaging the human race. It is deadly in action, which seems the same in any country, climatic influence or difference of latitude having no effect upon it.

¶ It should be unnecessary to tell the public of Sydney that the man or woman whose blood is pure is the best armed against this epidemic. Poor anaemic blood is the surest medium to epidemic disease. Corrupt blood assists contagion, and those people who have in their wisdom taken and are taking the blood-purifying medicine, Clements Tonic, will be the best able to resist the disease. Clements Tonic not only keeps the blood pure, it keeps the system healthy, too.

FACTS TO REMEMBER.—Keep the blood pure, and avoid this ailment. The body whose powers of resistance are great is least liable to infection. Bad blood in the system becomes a home for the germs of "catching" or infectious ailments. The poorer the blood the richer the breeding ground for the ravages of this ailment, with its distressing aches, pains, temperature, chills, and cough. To keep the blood non-infectious, pure, cool, and the health generally good, always take CLEMENTS TONIC. A healthy body is forearmed against disease in any shape or form. All Chemists and Stores sell this one great remedy.

Clements Tonic Ltd., Rozelle, N.S.W.

PNEUMONIC INFLUENZA

fills the Lungs with its Humors, arrests the circulation of the blood at its most vital point, and, if neglected, stops the Heart and causes death.

BUILD YOUR WALLS AND CEILINGS OF "GYPSBOARD."
GYPSBOARD MONOLITHIC PLASTER SHEETS go hand in hand with the needs of modern house-keeping. They start right away by enabling you to erect artistic panelled walls and beamed ceilings in half the time, and without the mess necessary to build them with lath and plaster.
GYPSBOARD is nailed on the framework of the room in panels, and these can easily be taken off when it is necessary to repair gas or water pipes, or electric wiring. GYPSBOARD is being used in scores of buildings to-day because tests have proved it to be the most reliable wallboard on the market.

DANKS QUALITY
IN BETTER BRASSWORK.
Experience counts in special manufactures like Engineers' and Plumbers' Brasswork. We have been making this locally for many years.
Quality counts, most especially in Steam and Water fittings. These must be reliable, and we see to it that those of our manufacture are reliable.
Value counts, especially in the important case when an order is large. Our value in Brasswork for single items, as well as large quantities, is better than imported.
Ask for our make, which we specially recommend.

THE CATTLE TICK.

COMMISSIONER'S REPORT.

The report of the Royal Commissioner, Mr. H. F. W. Fletcher, P.M., who was appointed to inquire into the administration of the Cattle Tick Act, was tabled in Parliament yesterday. Mr. Fletcher was appointed to inquire into certain definite matters, and generally into the question of the eradication of the cattle tick in New South Wales. In the course of his report the commissioner found that G. B. Elliott, inspector of stock, Kyogle, exercised the discretion vested in him in refusing to spray S. Gay's cattle after having given him notice to dip them, but, in view of the surrounding circumstances, that he did not act correctly, and that he should not have neglected to promptly treat these cattle by spraying during such time as he was unable to enforce the dipping process. Assuming that the attitude adopted by Gay was unreasonable and perverse, the responsible officers did not appear to exercise the tact the circumstances called for.

The commissioner found that stock had been allowed to leave the tick quarantine area without paying the dipping charge of sixpence per head, and that this matter of dealing with such matters indicated careless administration. According to the regulations, the practice adopted of allowing cattle to leave the quarantine area after being twice sprayed, instead of being twice dipped after being twice examined and found free from ticks, was illegal; and, if the present law is to be adhered to, it was recommended that movable dips be established at each approved crossing. In regard to the question "whether stock on clean holdings should be exempt from compulsory dipping, subject, however, to rigid inspection every three weeks, also whether horses should be sprayed every three weeks instead of every fourteen days as at present," the commissioner said he could only recommend the concessions sought subject to certain qualifications and exemptions, which were set out in the report, and included a recommendation that the Tweed quarantine area should be divided into at least five sections. The extensive area of practically uncontrolled scrub country contained within portions of the Kyogle quarantine area rendered it difficult to deal with, and necessary that it should be the subject of special treatment. Recommendations were accordingly made, and also with regard to the Woodenbong area.

BOTTRELL'S DIP.

The commissioner recommended that until Bottrell's dip could be shown to be ineffective, it be given an exhaustive trial under close official supervision—provided the proprietors supply it at a consistent arsenical strength in accordance with the standard claimed for it to the satisfaction of an approved and independent analyst—and that in the meantime it be treated as an approved mixture subject to the foregoing conditions.

The report stated that the present regulations with regard to travelling stock appeared to afford a sufficient safeguard if enforced rigidly, but for the control of straying stock, particularly bulls, they were not sufficient. One of the greatest risks of the spread of infestation appeared to be from straying stock, and recommendations were made to meet this trouble. These include provision that all holdings should be securely fenced, and that advances of material or money be made for that purpose in necessary and deserving cases. The commissioner considered that dipping fees should be abolished, and that, with certain exceptions, when outbreaks of tick occur the best results could be obtained by the establishment of local quarantine areas. It was recommended, amongst other things, that within the proposed buffer areas abutting into Queensland compulsory treatment be adopted, while separate and independent State control continued.

With regard to general matters, the commissioner stated that the present Act and regulations left a great deal to the discretion of the officers administering them, and in some cases this discretion had not been exercised with tact, although the officers appeared to have honestly acted as they believed best under the circumstances. With a view to establishing more uniform and consistent methods of procedure it was recommended that a pamphlet of instructions be issued to inspectors and assistant inspectors. The delay in deciding upon the course to be adopted was found due in a great measure to the controlling influence being in Sydney.

LOCAL BOARD OF CONTROL.

It was recommended that a local board of control be appointed, consisting of:—A permanent chairman appointed by the Government—a man of administrative ability with some knowledge of stock, and of the question of tick eradication, and, if possible, with some legal training; two representatives of the stockowners, to be elected annually—one by the stockowners, within the Tweed area and Bangalow-Lismore section and one by the stockowners within the Richmond, Kyogle, and Woodenbong areas, and two Government representatives, to be nominated annually by the Government (from within the same areas as above), and not to be officers of the department, or of the tick staff; that the board be responsible only to the Minister and Parliament, and not subject to control or direction by any branch of the Department of Agriculture; that the chairman be paid a salary fixed by the Public Service regulations; that each member of the board be paid travelling expenses, and a reasonable fee for each sitting; that the board sit monthly or at other times when urgently necessary; that the headquarters be at Lismore; that scientific research and experiments be continued by the department, and that those administering the Act be given the benefit of the knowledge acquired.

It was also recommended that cattle moving within quarantine areas, when cleaned or infested, be treated as required by regulations 54 or 55 respectively; the discretion of inspectors to be exercised with due regard to the convenience and interests of stockowners, consistent with reasonable precaution to avoid the risk of spreading infestation. With regard to stock passing out of the quarantine, it was recommended that regulation 58 be strictly adhered to, and that where necessary movable dips be erected at approved crossings.

FEDERAL CONTROL FAVOURED.

It was recommended that the principle be adopted of gradually reducing the existing quarantine areas from the southern extremity, by releasing all country which had been proved clean for a period of, say, eighteen months to two years, and that all dips erected in future be movable dips, which might be removed from localities clean to infested localities, and thus follow the infestation as it was driven north.

The commissioner considered that the only means by which the complete and permanent eradication of the cattle tick could be effected within this or any other State appeared to be by the whole matter being placed under Federal control, and said: "While the States continue to act independently of, and in instances not in harmony or sympathy with each other, nothing more definite can be expected within this State than to drive the pest back to our own northern border, and hold it there, and then only with the continuous prospect of further infestations occurring within the State, which might not be discovered until firmly established, and considerably spread."

It was recommended that the whole of the existing regulations be revised. The question of scalding of stock was dealt with, and the appointment of two qualified analysts recommended, one for Tweed area, and one for Bangalow-Lismore section, Richmond, Kyogle, and Woodenbong areas.

FALLOWING PAYS.

PARKES.—Notwithstanding adverse climatic conditions the Coobang district, to the east of Parkes, which comprises roughly between 30,000 and 40,000 acres, does not show an absolute failure, and the whole district may be classed as fair to good. Mr. Richard Job has taken 646 bags off 58 acres, an average of over 11 bags to the acre. The variety of wheat is Federation. It is of excellent quality, testing 63lb to the bushel. The result is evidence of the value of fallowing for dry seasons. Some first-class crops of hay are still in the stooks, the quality of which testifies to the excellence of the crops. Right throughout the Parkes district fair to good yields are being obtained from fallowed ground.

SUB-ARTESIAN WATER.

PARKES.—Sub-artesian water has been struck at Corarvery station, 14 miles from Parkes, at a depth of 180 feet. The water is of excellent quality, and the flow equals 10,000 gallons a day.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

KEMPSEY.—With the exception of a few places on the lower end rain is badly needed on the Macleay. This particularly applies to the upper river, where the young maize is badly in need of a good soaking. Cattle owners in the up-river centres are taking most of their stock on to the lower river for grass. In most of the paddocks on the top end the grass is very bare, which is in striking contrast to the paddocks at Austral Eden, and lower down, where magnificent fields of paspalum and clover are to be seen.

WAGGA.—Mr. G. Maurice McKeown, manager of the Wagga Experiment Farm for the last 21 years, is retiring from the Public Service at the end of the year. Mr. McKeown was first demonstrator in this State in the use of superphosphates for wheat cultivation.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

CRANBROOK SCHOOL.

Cranbrook School, Bellevue Hill, the former residence of the State Governor, promises to be one of the leading Anglican scholastic institutions in the State. It is just 12 months since the property was purchased, and during that period a council has been formed, headmaster and staff appointed, the buildings remodelled, a sports ground formed, and the original Cranbrook pavilion re-erected.

In order to cope with the increase of scholars it has been found necessary to utilise the whole of the main building for dormitories. This necessitates the erection of a new residence for the headmaster and a block of classrooms, and contracts have been let by Mr. Burcham Clamp, architect, to Messrs. J. M. and A. Pringle, builders, for the erection of these buildings. It is proposed to erect the classrooms in sections—the present contract providing for six new classrooms, with accommodation for 150 scholars, together with masters' common-room and ample hat, cloak, and locker accommodation. Abundance of ventilation and light will be provided in the new classrooms, while the sanitary accommodation throughout will be of the most modern description. Externally the additions have been designed so as to harmonise with the main buildings of Cranbrook, and when completed should form a handsome pile of buildings. The outer walls are formed as cavity walls, and, in addition, the same are to be roughcasted. The roofs will be covered with shingle tiles. Individual desks are to be installed in the classrooms, also masters' tables, etc., all of polished maple. Electricity is to be installed throughout, in fact, everything will be done for the comfort and welfare of the boys.

GENERAL NOTES.

On Sunday, December 1, Alderman Goldstein, Mayor of Randwick, opened and handed over to Corporal Long, a returned hero, a pretty little cottage, situated on the brow of a hill overlooking Coogee. The land for this home was given by Mr. A. Edwards, who also got together the building group. It was built in twelve week-ends, and the money to purchase materials was supplied by the Voluntary Workers' Cafe. Mr. King (hon. treasurer of the cafe), Mr. Simpson (chairman), Mr. Edwards, and Mr. Sutherland all made speeches; also Mr. Long, father of Corporal Long, who is still in hospital, and was unable to be present. Cheers were given for the King, the soldiers, and boys still away, and the ladies of the cafe. This makes the eighth cottage opened and handed over by the cafe. Several others will be opened shortly.

PEACE CONFERENCE PROBLEMS.

In reading the conjectures, threats, and demands addressed to the delegates to the Peace Conference it is well to remember the atmosphere of the different countries in which they were uttered. Great Britain is on the eve of a general election under conditions for which there is no precedent. Both the circumstances and the constituency are novel. Women vote for the first time, and a Labour party is a serious opponent of the Government. The old party cries are obsolete, but none the less there is a tendency to seek to find the dominant instinct of the electors and to satisfy it. In America there has been an election for Congress, which has revived partisan criticism. The next Presidential election is already under consideration, and each party is seeking to prove that in this settlement its views alone are fit to represent the opinion of the United States. The Democrat, Champ Clark, lays most emphasis on the freedom of the seas; Roosevelt, the retrieved Republican, speaks of the right of Great Britain to retain the finest navy in the world, superior even to that of the United States. In Germany everything is unsettled. There will be no settled government until a constituent assembly is elected, and there will be scenes of disorder until Dr. Liebknecht and his followers have abandoned their hope of imitating the excesses of Russia. But obviously the revolutionary leaders are following the example of the former Government, and doing their utmost to insist on the dangers of disorder. In Italy there is a disagreement between the advocates of an extension of territory on the east side of the Adriatic and those who would be content with an approximate union of the districts inhabited by men of Italian descent. The leaders of the respective parties are the Foreign Minister, Baron Sonnino, and the Prime Minister, Signor Orlando, and the disagreement is none the less important because both Ministers have worked together for their country during the war. In France there is a dissentient party led by that element among the Socialists who, after being in a minority throughout the war, became a majority in the middle of this year. France has problems of reconstruction before her such as will tax even her fortitude and resource. But in the immediate sittings of the Peace Conference her position is certain and her voice will be unanimous. The visit of her President and her Prime Minister to Metz and to Strassburg is a demonstration that she has obtained the greatest of all the prizes of the war. Her people, after half a century of dismemberment, are reunited. Her defences will be strengthened. Her revenue will gain new sources of wealth. The attitude of the Allies towards her is typified by the decision of the American Government to contribute towards the rebuilding of the northern departments. The Allies are agreed that the Germans must make good the devastation of their armies, but what they will pay in time will be anticipated by the United States. Similarly the Allies will provide that France enjoys preferential treatment for a limited time, whatever their ultimate arrangements may be. To allow France to be at a disadvantage in consequence of her prolonged resistance would be just as abhorrent to a sense of justice as the knowledge that a soldier was suffering in the competition of life through his patriotism in going to the war.

It is plain from the coalition manifesto that the influence of Great Britain will be on the side of a drastic reduction of armies. There is no probability that Mr. Lloyd George will be defeated, but if he were neither Mr. Asquith nor the Labour leaders would be more inclined to militarism. On this point the conference will be practically unanimous. It will not abolish armies, but it will reduce them in scale. If the League of Nations has its army the nations themselves will be limited to a defensive militia modelled, perhaps, on the new army suggested by the French Socialist leader Jaures. The attitude of the Powers towards naval progress is not so clear. President Wilson is said to be going to explain what he means by the freedom of the seas before the University of Oxford. The phrase is a relic of the early correspondence between President Wilson and the German Foreign Office, in which there were many references to the benefits derived from Prussia by Benjamin Franklin. It has been construed and welcomed by German Chancellors as a pledge that America will insist on the dismantling of all British naval stations, on the return of Gibraltar to Spain, and in a great reduction in the British navy. So far the most striking comment from the United States has been made by Mr. Secretary Daniels, in urging Congress to adopt a three years' naval programme which will provide for one hundred and fifty-six vessels, including ten battleships and six battle-cruisers. Mr. Daniels evidently recognises the broad distinction between an army and a navy, which was present to the minds of the German Ministers. It is possible to prepare an army by stealth, as the Germans did before 1813. A man may be trained as were recruits in America before being sent to France, in ten weeks. Even a munition factory may be rapidly fitted up if tools and raw material are obtainable. A navy cannot be improvised. In peace time it took more than two years to fit a battleship for service. It may have taken much less in war time, but neither in war nor in peace can the crew of a modern warship be trained in an emergency. There is, therefore, a broad distinction between naval and military policy, which must be observed until the League of Nations has been permanently established or the national character of Germany has been changed. A League of Nations must be one outcome of the Peace Conference unless all the statesmen in Europe are deterred by its difficulties or by their precedents. Some league is certainly necessary to protect the work of the conference itself. New nationalities cannot either govern or defend themselves as soon as they are born. For years to come they will need the protection of an army unless they are to provide a bait for the cupidity of the German people as the Balkan States have done in the past. The Allied nations are responsible for the new Bohemia, the Greater Servia, the new Arabia, the new Palestine, and, to some extent, for the new States on the Russian border. Whatever may happen to national armies an international army will be needed for this duty, and if it is to succeed it will need to be guided by better counsels than any international army of the past.

THE STATE SESSION.

Paradoxical as it may seem, the Parliamentary session now closing has been noted for the time that has been wasted and for the amount of legislative work actually done. The session began on July 12, and has, therefore, lasted five calendar months. It would be no exaggeration to say that at least two of those months were absolutely wasted. Almost at the beginning of the session an adjournment for nearly five weeks was agreed upon for the purpose of allowing members to enter upon a recruiting campaign with which both sides had expressed genuine sympathy. After the Houses had formally adjourned for this purpose it became known that no arrangements had been made for the use of this extra recruiting material placed at the disposal of the Federal authorities. During the last week of the adjournment a series of meetings were arranged, but it is very doubtful whether the results achieved gave any justification to the shutting up of Parliament. The balance of the time which can be said to have been wasted was spent in the discussion throughout its various stages of the Sedition Bill. The bill was bitterly opposed, and every obstructionist device known to Parliamentary practice was brought into use to prevent its passage. At length it became a race between the Sedition Bill and the end of the war; and the latter won while the bill was in a state of suspension between the two Houses of the legislature, where it was conveniently shelved. Thus only three months were available for the work of the session. As usual a large number of bills have gone overboard, but if the business paper is examined it will be found that most of these are measures that had no place in the Governor's Speech, but were introduced from time to time as the demand and the opportunity arose. The list of bills passed also includes a number which were not set out in the sessional programme. A new Local Government Bill was the measure placed at the head of the Government's programme. It has been passed through the Assembly and sent on to the Upper House for consideration next session. Notwithstanding the fact that two portions of this bill were dropped—main roads board and width of tyres—to be introduced as separate measures next year, the measure is a very important piece of legislation.

The task of grappling with venereal diseases was undertaken and has been accomplished. It is one of the most important things done in the interests of public health for many years. The legal status of women, amendments to the Mining and Irrigation Acts, the Pastures Protection Act, registration of securities and company law, the law of conveyancing, assistance to share farmers, reorganisation of the Western Lands Commission and the Lands Appeal Court, the liberalising of our closer settlement provisions and of the methods of granting advances under the Savings Bank Act, are all measures to which the Government definitely committed itself in the Governor's Speech and which have been placed on the Statute Book. The only other bills mentioned on the programme put before Parliament in July and which remain outstanding are improved educational facilities at continuation schools, stock foods and stock brands, bills of lading, and registration of surveyors. Attention was given to the Public Service, the industrial undertakings of the State, the settlement of soldiers on the land, which involved the expenditure of a very large amount of money in the resumption of private estates, and the inauguration of entirely new principles of electoral law. Naturally the work has been rushed and members are exhausted. The end of the session has witnessed unduly protracted sittings of the Assembly, and some of the work done during these latter days is open to the challenge that members were not in a fit condition to legislate. There is nothing new about this end-of-the-session rush of business. Almost every Government has been forced to adopt such methods to get its programme through. Ministers are compelled to use their majority to get business done at the fag end of the session, and the question constantly arises whether legislation under such conditions is worth very much. Certainly the discussion of electoral reform has been an extraordinary business, though it may be argued, no doubt, that the details of proportional representation have been left over. No illuminating debate, in which the public has been informed and to which it has been attracted, can be recorded as so much to the good. There is the other side to this in the way the Labour extremists have acted. It may be the business of an Opposition to oppose, but it is no business of the minority to waste time. When it becomes a question of allowing them to take the business of Parliament out of the hands of the Government, or of doing the work for which Parliament was called together, there can be but one answer.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

The current issue of the "Mail" is the Christmas number, and is undoubtedly the best value for fourpence offered anywhere in the Commonwealth. Printed on good art paper, the illustrations show up beautifully. The pictures—photographs and drawings—afford plenty of variety—from surfing on a Sydney beach to snow sports on Kosciusko, from floral gems of the bush to the rounding-up of a mob of cattle; from chickens and kittens to the children of Marshall Islands. There are lovely scenic views from all the States, and photographs showing girl farmhands, in New South Wales, who filled the vacancies caused by the departure of brothers for the war. The "double-page" is occupied chiefly by an excellent photograph of an Anzac playing blindman's buff with a party of children; while smaller pictures recall familiar scenes in the soldier's career—beginning with the transport in which he sailed away, and ending with a presentation of decorations by the Governor-General of Australia. A feature of the issue is the large number of stories and poems by Australian writers, illustrated by Australian artists. There are nine stories, and about a dozen sets of verses, among them being many especially written for the young folks. Altogether, the 1918 Christmas issue of the "Mail" is an admirable production, and there is certain to be a very wide demand for it.

MR. BAVIN AND THE PREMIER.

SHARP CONTROVERSY.

"HE MAY HAVE MY RESIGNATION."

Mr. Bavin, M.L.A., has furnished the following reply to the statement by the Premier published yesterday regarding the application of the closure at certain stages of the Proportional Representation Bill:—

"Mr. Holman does me the honour to refer to my protest against the way in which the Proportional Representation Bill was forced through the Legislative Assembly. I may perhaps be allowed a few words in reply.

"The committee stage of this bill was begun on Friday afternoon. The House had then been sitting continuously from 4.30 p.m. on Thursday. We had already had two all-night sittings during the week. Mr. Holman states that the clauses which were gagged were purely machinery clauses, not involving any question of principle. This statement is wholly inaccurate. Even if it were true it would be no excuse.

"Mr. Holman states that I pointed to no amendments that I wished to discuss. That is true. I had been physically unable to consider the bill at all, since every moment of my time had been occupied in an endeavour to follow the legislation which was being thrust upon us hour by hour by the Government, and I had already been without sleep for two nights in trying to keep pace with that legislation. But Mr. Holman knows perfectly well that my protest was not based on any personal deprivation. I knew that other members had amendments which they wished to move. I knew also that these amendments were the result of reasonable consideration of the bill. But no opportunity was given to members on either side to even indicate what it was in the bill that they wanted to discuss, because immediately a clause was put to the House the gag was moved by a Minister. This was prompted solely by the Government's desire to finish the session last week. No reason was given for this, though Mr. Holman to-day says that some arrangements had been made with country members. If that is so it is the first I have heard of it, and I can only say that the Government has no right to make private arrangements for the personal convenience of country members which involves the defiance of every rule of reasonableness and fairness.

"Mr. Holman states that 50 supporters like me would ruin any Government. I admire Mr. Holman's extraordinary powers as much as anyone; I fully realise his value as the leader of the National party. I appreciate the personal courtesy I have always received from him. But I tell Mr. Holman that if 50 supporters like me would ruin any Government, one leader like Mr. Holman, if he perseveres in the methods which he has adopted lately, will ruin the National Government.

"In conclusion, I realise as fully as Mr. Holman the necessity for the suppression of personal idiosyncrasies for the sake of party unity. The last thing I wish to do is to embarrass him or his Government by asserting my personal opinion on matters of detail. But if he, with the concurrence of the National party, objects to my exercising the right of public criticism when I think that things are being done either in administration or in the conduct of business in Parliament which are wrong and unfair, he has only to tell me so, and he may have my resignation to-morrow, both as a member of the National party and as the member for Gordon. If his view of the obligations of a member of the National party excludes the right to criticise as I have done, I am quite prepared to ask the people who put me into Parliament to say whether they endorse that view or not."

Dr. Arthur says, in a letter:—"I am not in a position to take a hand in the controversy between Mr. Holman and Mr. Bavin, for the reason that I was not present at the sitting in the early hours of Saturday morning. And I was absent deliberately, because I refused to be any longer a party to what I regard as stark insanity. The Assembly sat from Tuesday afternoon to Wednesday morning at 6 a.m., on Wednesday from 4.30 to 11.15 p.m. on Thursday, and on Friday from 2.30 p.m. to 8.30 a.m. on Saturday—three all-night sittings and one all-day, with a temperature on each of the evenings at 9 p.m. of about 70 degrees, and what is even more significant—a humidity of about 80 per cent. The consequences of folly such as this was the production of deadly fatigue among the members. Not only were they totally unable to concentrate their attention on the important matters submitted to them, but they also ran the risk of doing themselves permanent and irreparable physical injury."

PUBLIC SERVICE.

CASE FOR THE DEFENCE.

COUNSEL BEFORE PARLIAMENT.

MR. ALLARD'S REPORT CRITICISED.

It is over seven years since a "stranger's" voice was heard on the floor of the Legislative Assembly. And on that occasion it was the same voice as was heard last night, when Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., appeared at the bar of the House to defend the members of the Public Service Board against the strictures against their administration passed by Mr. G. Mason Allard as Public Service Royal Commissioner.

The benches on both sides of the chamber were more fully occupied than usual, when Mr. Knox entered, gowned in the silk and full-bottomed wig of a King's Counsellor, and invited by the Speaker to address the House from the end of the table. The eminent representative of the Inner Bar spoke in the most deliberate way for an hour and a quarter. He was listened to in silence, except for exclamations of appreciation of the points made, mostly from the Opposition benches.

Prior to the adjournment for dinner, the Attorney-General moved that it was expedient to introduce a bill to provide that the Governor-in-Council "may retire the members of the Public Service Board and appoint their successors."

The leader of the Opposition (Mr. John Storey) said that only a little while ago Mr. Holman appointed Mr. Hanna and eulogised Mr. Taylor. The other member of the board was so competent that his fitness for the position had never been discussed in Parliament. If ever there was a case of hanging a man first and trying him afterwards this was one. The whole thing was an outrage—three reputable men were being "sacked" without being given a chance. The Premier was dismissing those three men because they failed to carry out his instructions.

The Premier said that if members of the Public Service Board had told Mr. Storey anything to that effect——

Mr. Storey: I have not spoken to them.

The Premier: What Mr. Storey has said is absolutely false, and he admits that he has not spoken to any member of the board. It is one of those things that floated gradually into his mind, and, having floated in, there was no way of it floating out except by his saying it. Before the Government determines what is to be done, counsel will be heard for the Public Service Board, but it is necessary first to introduce the bill, because counsel cannot appear before the House unless to refer to the business of the House. I now ask members whether they wish counsel for the Public Service Board to be heard?

Mr. Wright said he wished to defend the course of justice. He thought the members of the Public Service Board should be heard in their own defence. Still, he thought they should have been "sacked" long ago. The inquiry they made at Broken Hill convinced him of that.

The Minister for Education (Mr. James), after Mr. Wright and Mr. Price had spoken, moved that the question be now put, and this was agreed to by 36 votes to 28. The main question—that it is expedient that the bill be introduced—was agreed to on a similar division, and the bill being introduced, its first reading was carried by 37 to 27.

The bill proposed to authorise the Governor to call upon the present members of the Public Service Board to retire, and to grant such compensation as he deems just. It also provided for the constitution of a new board, with a chairman exercising both a deliberative and casting vote, and with a power of veto over decisions arrived at by his two colleagues. The bill fixes the salaries at:—Chairman, £2500 per annum; two other members at £1500 each.

Mr. Levy moved, and it was resolved, that Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., be heard at the bar of the House on behalf of Messrs. Hanna, Wilshire, and Taylor, members of the Public Service Board.

MR. KNOX'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Knox said it could hardly be doubted that the bill was one to dismiss from their office three men who had served the State for a great number of years. Monetary compensation could not be effective to heal the wound inflicted by the report of the Royal Commissioner. There was a rule, not only a rule of law, but of justice, and it applied to every body of men empowered to deal with the person, property, or rights of their fellow-men. That rule, to put it plainly, was that no man should be condemned in his person or property without having a full, fair, and ample opportunity to defend himself. From first to last, from the moment that the Commissioner first sat till the time he signed his report, there was no suggestion, good, bad, or indifferent, by the Commissioner that any definite act or definite omission of the board was weighing in his mind as a cause for which he should report the board to the House.

SUPERANNUATION.

On the superannuation question, went on Mr. Knox, the Commissioner had found "that the board stood self-condemned for sacrificing the efficiency of the service to the sentimental consideration of the individual." Yet in a previous sentence, the Commissioner said: "The position is difficult, for long and loyal, even if not very efficient, service on the part of an officer casts some obligation on the employer, and particularly is this so in the case of large institutions, and still more particularly in the Public Service, where years of routine work does not make his services a readily marketable commodity in the outside world. . . There is also a necessity for particular provisions to enable the board to dismiss the incompetent or to provide for their reduction to some other office." The Commissioner found that the board stood self-condemned, but the Parliament itself passed the Superannuation Act of 1916 for the purpose of enabling the board to show consideration in dealing with the cases of men who had done good service to the State in their younger days, but were now unable to do so. That Act had never come into force, because of the financial stringency caused by the war, and the board, out of feelings of consideration and sympathy for these men, had retained them in the service. The Commissioner himself had pointed out in the report that the board could not superannuate these men because of the financial stringency, yet he also said it stood self-condemned as sacrificing the efficiency of the service. "Call it sympathy, or what you will," said Mr. Knox, "nobody reading that report could justly find that the board stands self-condemned."

POLITICAL INFLUENCE.

The next matter was the appointment of Mr. Burgess to report on travelling stock reserves. As a matter of fact, the appointment was never made by the board; it had nothing to do with it. Mr. Burgess was not graded by the board, although his salary appeared on the estimates. The Commissioner's finding was that the board had complacently accepted an illegal appointment. It had done nothing of the kind. The fact was that in August, 1917, the Minister for Lands recommended the temporary appointment of Mr. Burgess, but the board would not do it. The appointment was made without the consent of the board, and, as a matter of fact, the first they knew of it was from a query by the Auditor-General respecting his salary.

VISITS TO THE COUNTRY.

Next came a sneer by the Commissioner respecting some trips to the country made by the board—several of these were mentioned, notably to Jenolan, Kosciusko, and Berry. As to the Jenolan trip, it was undertaken at the request of the Auditor-General to inquire into certain matters connected with the management of the accommodation house there. The board arrived one day about noon, spent the afternoon inspecting the farm, and the evening in taking evidence, and left again next day. As to the Kosciusko trip, it also was at the request of the Auditor-General, as was also the Berry trip. The innuendo contained in the Commissioner's report was that these trips were taken as holiday trips, and that the board had exercised discrimination in the choice of places to which it would go.

IGNORANCE OF REGULATIONS.

Another matter on which the Commissioner had made strictures was the fact that the board showed lamentable ignorance of the Act and regulations. The regulations were contained in a book (holding up a large octavo volume), printed in small type, and it would be a waste of time for any man to try and commit it to memory. A further matter was in connection with the checking of the furniture, the water bottles, and so on, in public departments; another was the necessity of seeing that the public servants did their work. The board could not spend its time going round to see that every man did his work—of course, the work would be going on as long as the board was looking on, but it could not tell what was being done in the absence of its members. The Commissioner recognised that the members of the board could not go round to the various offices to see that the Civil Servants were doing their work, because he proposed the appointment of inspectors to carry out such duties.

REPORT NOT RELIABLE.

Mr. Knox submitted that he had shown conclusively that the Commissioner's report was not a document which it would be safe to rely upon as a ground for legislation of a very drastic character. It was not only a question of taking away a billet. It was a good deal more than that. The members of the Public Service Board, would not, he thought, object to being retired if they were compensated for the unexpired portion of their terms, so long as that retirement was not accompanied by a condemnation. He thought he had said enough to show that the members of the Public Service Board had not a fair trial, and that the tribunal was not a competent tribunal. He offered no suggestion that Mr. Allard was not an extremely competent man in his own particular branch. He offered no suggestion that Mr. Allard was not an extremely competent man of business, because he knew that he was; but it did not follow that an ordinary business man was competent to conduct such an inquiry. The members of the Public Service Board had not been given an opportunity to defend themselves, of answering charges, or of explaining apparent anomalies.

"I close as I began," said Mr. Knox. "In this instance there are far wider interests involved than the personal interests of these three individuals. There is the principle of legislating in derogation of the rights and privileges of private individuals, without that private individual having a proper opportunity to defend himself. I am not forgetful of the fact that I have been allowed to address the House to-night, but that is not a proper opportunity. No lawyer would suggest that any counsel could, in the short space of time at his disposal, no matter how zealous those instructing him, be in a position to deal with such a lengthy report. I submit that in many respects the Commissioner's report is one on which Parliament cannot, and should not, act without further inquiry."

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S REPLY.

The Attorney-General said that the Royal Commission on the Public Service was appointed because the Premier had stated in his policy speech that the whole Public Service would be reviewed. Mr. Allard's capacity had not been questioned by the learned counsel.

Dr. Arthur: Do you want this measure put through to-night?

The Attorney-General said the Government wanted the House to pass the measure this session because if the Commissioner's findings were justified it was a serious matter for the House to go into recess and leave the board in control. If the findings were not justified, then the board should be re-established. If the bill passed no action would be taken upon it until the board was heard to the full.

The position the Government was faced with, went on Mr. Hall, was that this condemnatory report was brought up, and the board wrote two documents—protests—concerning it. In one of the protests—that of December 4—the board said specifically that a promise was made by Mr. Fuller when the inquiry was in contemplation that it would not be entrusted to a single person, but that there would be three members. There was no document in existence to that effect, and Mr. Fuller said he had no recollection of ever discussing the question with the board in any way whatever. However, until the report was presented there was never a word of protest against only one Commissioner being appointed. On the point that the board was not allowed to cross-examine witnesses. At the beginning of the inquiry the Commissioner requested information upon 18 points on which the inquiry was to proceed, and the board knew what they were. During the conduct of the investigation the members of the board were not the only people who wanted the right to cross-examine, but what would have been that position if the heads of the service had been allowed the right of cross-examination, while the lower ranks were not? There would have been a howl from the Opposition. As a fact, the assessors were allowed to cross-examine through the Commissioner—the assessors for the different branches of the service as well as the assessor for the board—and no question which any of them wished asked was refused.

The Public Service Board was condemned by its own explanation of the various transactions that were brought before the Commissioner; their failure was not one that was disclosed by other people, but by themselves. They were represented by Mr. Loveridge, who was, from the beginning of the inquiry, a deputy member of the board in place of Mr. Hanna, who went to England. Not a word of Mr. Loveridge's capacity was said until the report was presented. The board was furnished with copies of the evidence taken each day; when the Commissioner went round the different departments, Mr. Loveridge accompanied him, and the complaint was made by the service that the board was better served than they were. Questions were asked in Parliament about it. Moreover the board had the opportunity of discussing all matters with the Commissioner; he discussed with them the topics that were running through his mind, and if the board could give an explanation the members of it had every chance to do so.

The Commissioner had censured the board for not reporting to Parliament that Mr. Burgess had been appointed by the Government to a position to which the board had previously refused to appoint him.

Mr. G. M'Girr: If they had you would have "sacked" him twelve months ago.

The Attorney-General: The hon. member knows that the Cabinet can't "sack" the members of the board.

Mr. G. M'Girr: And you can't "sack" them now. I'll bet you on that.

Mr. Hall, continuing, said that if in his remarks it appeared to members of the House that he was an advocate for the Commissioner, he would anticipate criticism by saying that if the House passed the bill, giving the Government power that it asked for, then, when the Government came to consider matters, he would take no part in the decision.

Mr. Osborne said he intended to register a protest against the method adopted by the Government upon this matter, and against its indecent haste in dealing with a question so important as this one. The House had not been properly treated; it had no opportunity of reading the report of the evidence upon which it was based; time after time members had asked, but had never been able to get any statement from the Premier as to when the report could be obtained, and even now it was only 24 hours since some members had copies of it.

Mr. Macdonald said it appeared to him that the whole thing was too superficial to warrant Parliament in passing the bill. The inquiry did not seem to be of the judicial character that it should have been; the proceedings were not fair, and he would ask the Government to consent to the bill going over until next session. He moved that the bill be read the second time that day six months.

On the motion of Mr. Brookfield the debate was adjourned until the following day.

MEAT SCHEME.

NATIONAL PARTY MEETING.

A HOSTILE REPORT.

At a meeting of members of the National Parliamentary party held yesterday the report of the committee of country members on the supply, distribution, and price of meat was presented by Mr. Wearne, M.L.A., convener of the committee. The report, which goes into much detail about the supply of stock, expresses views greatly hostile to the proposal recently made to institute State control, with a view to the elimination of the middleman.

"The committee are unanimous," says the report, "that at present and for some time to come no appreciable reduction in the wholesale price can be brought about. No matter what control the industry is under, the consumer must pay according to the supply of fat stock available. We are not concerned just now how the available supplies are being dealt with. The fact remains that the sole cause of the diminution in the numbers of stock for consumption is the continued adverse seasons.

"The committee note with alarm the continuous slaughter of young female stock, and say that 'no more inopportune time could be chosen than now to expect, in view of the condition of the country and its supply of stock, any alterations in values. It is unfortunately more probable that meat with the majority of the people will be almost unobtainable.'"

The committee recommends that private slaughter yards be allowed to continue and operate under proper control and supervision. The value of this was seen during the 1917 strike, when better meat was obtainable, and a check obtained against industrial trouble. It is also alleged, with apparent truth, they say, that the elimination of middlemen will cause large financial aid being withdrawn from graziers and others who get this assistance to restock from the firms, and if such aid was not available the supplies of fat stock would diminish. No Government could effectively do this work.

The committee unhesitatingly and unanimously protest against the proposal to take over the Riverstone Meat Works, are averse to the elimination as suggested of the middleman, and would advise that the Government give full consideration to other suggestions, particularly the distribution question, which is imperative.

"We are strongly of opinion that the system of price-fixing has had no effect in reducing the price of meat, but has had the effect of disorganising the trade generally," they say. "A scheme for the introduction of co-operative methods dealing with all branches of the trade has been suggested in committee. We commend this suggestion to the Government for investigation."

HOT DAYS IN THE COUNTRY.

The following high temperatures were recorded at inland towns yesterday:—Bourke 114, Wilcannia 106, Walgett 110, Wagga 100, Coonabarabran 101, Forbes 107, Bathurst 99, and Goulburn 97 degrees.

DUNTROON.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S ADDRESS.

In an address to the cadets who had gained graduation certificates after four years' training at the Royal Military College at Duntroon, his Excellency the Governor, during his visit of inspection to the college on Monday, said that no peace training for military service in the Empire was so comprehensive as that at Duntroon, because elsewhere training was specialised for different branches in different colleges, as at Sandhurst and Woolwich. At Duntroon they had a consolidated training in respect to every branch of military duty and knowledge which was required in the responsible position that the cadets would be called upon to fill—where each of them in the district to which he was posted must be a compendium of all military knowledge and an example of all military virtue.

"You are probably disappointed," said his Excellency, "that you pass out of Duntroon at the very moment when the chance of active service is over. If there was any place in the Commonwealth where the declaration of the armistice was not received with unalloyed satisfaction it was at Duntroon, where the cadets have for four years been straining at the leash to be up and at the enemy. But do not let a legitimate disappointment put you out of conceit of your profession or cause you to lose interest. You take up your posts at a time which offers you considerable scope for your abilities. You enjoy the prestige conferred on you by the conduct and service of Duntroon cadets who have shed lustre on the college as officers of the A.I.F. through more than four years of war. Our peace forces have now to be re-established and reorganised in the light of all that has been learnt. The total a fine body. Behind the militia and cadets the citizen forces, for whose efficiency you will in the future be largely responsible, there will be that National Reserve, now being set up, which ought to constitute a force of 200,000 of as fine a soldiery as any in the world, holding a glorious record. It is for you to see that the citizen forces approximate to the highest standard of military virtue and efficiency set up by the A.I.F. It is for you to maintain in each military district that high sense of duty and standard of excellence which has here become part of your being. A spirit of duty never more needed than at the close of a great war with the inevitable reaction that follows."

LORD MAYOR'S OUTLOOK.

STRONG ADVOCATE OF GREATER SYDNEY.

Alderman John English, who was elected Lord Mayor of Sydney for 1919 on Monday, was asked yesterday afternoon if he was entering upon his duties with any fixed purpose in his mind or any new plan of administration.

"Apart from the Labour platform as published in to-day's 'Herald,'" he said, "I have no policy. In municipal, as in political life, the path of good intentions very often leads to disappointment. What is the use of drawing up a programme of reforms and enterprises which you know you will not be able to carry out? This much, however, I can say—my guiding rule will be action, not words. I am sick and tired of hearing reforms talked about, without a single step being taken to carry out those reforms. I have no fads or fancies, no pet schemes, and I feel that my time will be fully occupied in giving effect to the Labour platform, as far as it is practicable to do so. The one fixed purpose I have in my mind is to make Greater Sydney a reality. The day for dreaming about a Greater Sydney is past. The City Council must get up steam on a great undertaking, which, in my opinion, is the key to the better solving of problem, and many other reforms. If I have a bee in my bonnet it is the Greater Sydney bee. I will do all I can in the City Council to push on the Greater Sydney movement, and I will do all in my power to force our legislators to tackle the big job in a practical way, instead of playing with it. With the co-operation of Parliament there is no reason why next year should not see the spirited start of the Greater Sydney scheme, about which we have had so much aimless and pointless talk. We must make up our minds to try to do big things, not dream them all day long. This I can promise will be my vow when I am sworn in as Lord Mayor of Sydney."

A JUDGE'S SALARY.

DELICATE POSITION IN TASMANIA.

HOBART, Monday.

Correspondence between the Attorney-General, Mr. W. B. Propsting, the Chief Justice, Sir Herbert Nicholls, and Mr. Justice Ewing, as to the request of the latter to reside in Launceston, was handed to the Press with an intimation from the Chief Justice that as the matter was to be discussed by Parliament, he and Mr. Justice Crisp thought all correspondence ought to be made public. The correspondence opened in October, last year, when the Attorney-General told the Chief Justice the Government had no objection to Mr. Justice Ewing residing in Launceston if no inconvenience was caused to the public and no increased cost. The Chief Justice replied that he and Mr. Justice Crisp held strongly the view that the Judges should live in one place in permanent consultation, but Mr. Justice Ewing desired to reside at Launceston for family reasons. Mr. Justice Ewing went to Launceston, and now asked for extra payment of £250 a year. On October 1 last the Attorney-General wrote the Chief Justice that Mr. Justice Ewing was prepared to reside in Launceston for at least five years, provided certain allowances were made him, and asked their Honors' opinions. After 12 months' trial, the Chief Justice replied objecting to Mr. Justice Ewing communicating with Ministers upon matters affecting the administration of justice, and requesting that all correspondence should be through him. He repeated that both he and Mr. Justice Crisp were against the proposal by a junior puisne Judge, and pointing out that the latter had, during the last two years, made private negotiations with members of the Ministry, and proposals by which his salary would be substantially increased, and seeking arrangements to obtain an increase of £50 a year which would be illegal unless sanctioned by Parliament. Mr. Justice Ewing then wrote pointing out the advantages of his residence in Launceston, and the Chief Justice concluded the correspondence by a letter on October 28, that matters were to be discussed between the Government and Judges.

CHRISTMAS APPEALS.

HOME FOR INCURABLES.

The secretary of the New South Wales Home for Incurables at Ryde, Mr. F. C. Mason, writes:—"May I be permitted to again appeal this Christmas time for donations to make the season really a bright and happy one for our unfortunate guests. From all the professions and occupations of middle-class life the guests of the New South Wales Home for Incurables are gathered. Nearly all have been at one time in fair circumstances. It is not the actual poor as a class who most demand our sympathies, but those persons who, having been accustomed to the comforts and amenities of life, have fallen on evil days, and with no hope of amelioration are doomed to pass their remaining years not only in poverty, but worse still, in the midst of people of uncongenial minds and manners, with no ray to illumine the gloom of the long vista of dreary years to which they may be doomed. Children also are admitted to this home, and at the present time there are seven incurably afflicted children as patients.

"We are pleading for the suffering heroes and heroines of real life. Read the human documents at this home, and say if they do not set forth stories of patient suffering as touching as any that the great Master gave us. We are anxious to make this Christmas a happy one for our guests, and for that reason this appeal has been written. We invite all to spend an afternoon among the incurables in the beautiful home at Ryde, and then with hearts touched by what you have seen, stretch forth a helping hand. Everybody can help, and no gift is too small and no gift too large to be most gratefully acknowledged. All donations to be sent to the secretary, New South Home for Incurables, 72B King-street, Sydney."

ST. BRIGID'S ORPHANAGE, RYDE.

The authorities of St. Brigid's Orphanage, Ryde, write:—"Kind friends are asked to help to provide accommodation for the numerous little ones, who are daily refused admission to the orphanage owing to the want of space. To overcome the difficulty, the sisters have undertaken to erect a new wing, thus incurring the responsibility of a heavy debt, and earnestly appeal to the charity of friends in this and the sister States for contributions towards its liquidation."

BOLSHEVIK MENACE.

TENSION IN GERMANY.

RUSSIANS ARRIVING TO ASSIST REVOLT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.

Confused messages continue to arrive from Berlin, indicating that Liebknecht's followers are endeavouring to foment a revolution. General indications, however, show that the Spartacus group is unable to overthrow the present Government. Pillaging continues in Berlin. The Spartacus group is well supplied with machine guns, and is fighting the Government troops at isolated points.

It is reported that Russian Bolsheviks are arriving in Berlin to assist the revolt.

RECENT BLOODSHED.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

News from Berlin, received in Eurich, says it is evident the riots were links in a well-prepared and organised attempt by the extremists to overthrow the Government. The Spartacus group has concentrated in Berlin the best organisers in the whole country. The Government, however, has in readiness 20,000 troops. The Republican Guard and military now occupy the Invaliden-strasse, many railway stations, the university, and other notable quarters. Latest reports show that Sunday passed quietly.

A Rotterdam report says that when demonstrators in Berlin were proceeding along the Invaliden-strasse they found troops blocking the path. The soldiers warned them back. At first they obeyed, but crowds flocking from the side streets urged the mass forward. The troops fired, and scores fell. Others were seized with panic, and jumped through shop windows. Machine guns were fired continuously for two minutes.

American troops are hastening in trains to Coblenz, where Bolshevism is rampant.

An Amsterdam message says the "Weser Zeitung" reports that a sanguinary encounter occurred in Brunswick between the Red Guards and the famous Black Hussars returning from the front. The latter, following the commander's lead, fired on a municipal deputation of welcome. The Red Guards replied, and the infuriated populace dragged the officers from their horses, and forced them to march in procession through the streets.

THE FORCES OF ORDER.

A Stockholm report states that imposing demonstrations by extremists, headed by Liebknecht in an armoured car, continue. The sequel remains to be unrolled. Berlin workmen are predominantly Bolshevistic. The deserters are their natural allies; but the returning soldiers are overwhelmingly on the side of the Government. These alone have arms. The vast stream of soldiers flowing to Berlin in the next few days is likely to alter the position entirely in favour of Herr Ebert (head of the Government). If the Government has a courageous definite policy it has little to fear. Liebknecht's followers are really few, and have fewer arms. As a deserter said to the "Tageblatt," "We were fools to give up our rifles." Meanwhile, the Government is taking a strong line against violence on either side.

GERMAN REPUBLIC SCHEME.

The correspondent of the "Daily Express" in Berlin interviewed Herr Scheidemann, who said: "The election of a national assembly at the earliest possible moment is necessary to enable Germany to give guarantees of stability when making peace. The assembly must also consider the question of establishing a State tribunal to try persons guilty of causing the war, and to deal with the Entente's demand for the Kaiser's extradition."

Herr Scheidemann considers that the Kaiser has been already sufficiently punished, but the question of his part in causing the war must be clearly decided. The Government is daily receiving hundreds of telegrams from returning soldiers supporting the present regime. The Soldiers' and Workmen's Council will carry on only until a national assembly is formed. A supreme council numbering six is the superior body, and will nominate peace delegates to meet the Allies.

SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

A report from Hamburg states that a Republic of Schleswig-Holstein, within the German Empire, is about to be proclaimed at Neumuenster.

A CANDID GERMAN.

The correspondent of the "Daily Express" in Berlin interviewed Herr Max Harden, editor of the Radical paper the "Zukunft." Max Harden said: "I knew Germany must be defeated even before the American entry. When America declared war, I fought with the German censors to tell the people the truth. I pressed the authorities to accept President Wilson's 14 points, knowing we would never get better terms."

Herr Harden concluded: "The armistice terms are most hard. If peace is based on those terms, Germany will be ruined. There are millions of sincere Germans. The Allies should not treat us as militarists, but as men."

THE AUSTRIAN EMPEROR.

A Zurich report says that the Austrian Emperor Charles is living in retirement at the chateau at Eckartsau under the surveillance of the revolutionary police. He is subjected to food restrictions. He takes short walks in the park with the Empress and his children. Charles is much depressed, and suffers from great nervousness.

AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP.

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Times" says that Mr. Daniels (Secretary for the Navy), in a speech, referred to an incident in 1911 when Admiral Sims declared at the Lord Mayor's dinner that the British Empire could count on the aid of the United States if threatened by an enemy. Mr. Daniels said Admiral Sims had proved a true prophet, and added that the outstanding blessing as a result of the war was the perfect co-operation, sympathy, and comradeship of the American and British navies, which must continue to work together in order to preserve the freedom of the seas.

CHILI AND PERU.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

Despatches from Santiago say that the Chilian Council of Ministers is considering the acceptance of an offer by the United States to mediate in connection with the dispute with Peru.

The Santiago correspondent of the United Press interviewed the Chilian Foreign Minister, Senor Bergono, who said: "Chili will carry out the treaty of 1883. Peru feared the result of a plebiscite to determine the disposition of Tacna and Arica. Peru quarrelled with the methods of voting and the qualification of voters. We await developments with equanimity."

LOANS FOR EUROPE.

It is reported from Washington that Mr. McAdoo (ex-Secretary to the Treasury) asked Congress to grant loans amounting to £300,000,000, to aid the devastated countries in Europe, portion of existing war issues being available for the purpose.

MILITARY PROMOTIONS.

Lieutenant-Colonels D. P. White (Australian Mounted Forces) and E. T. Leane (Ordnance Corps) have been promoted colonels.

Majors D. Embleton, H. Wollard, C. Mattei, E. W. Fairfax, E. Culpin (Army Medical Corps), and Professor David have been promoted to lieutenant-colonels.

BRITAIN'S TRADE.

The Board of Trade returns show that the imports to Britain in November increased by £7,115,863. Exports decreased £163,484, and re-exports decreased £651,830.

ARMISTICE TERMS.

ALLIES DEMAND SHIPS.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

A message from Berlin received in Amsterdam states that Herr Erzberger (Secretary of State) announces that the French have requested the German Army Command to designate plenipotentiaries to discuss the prolongation of the armistice, at Treves, on December 12 or December 13.

Reports from Berlin received in Amsterdam state that the British Naval Armistice Delegation, headed by Admiral Browning, will shortly proceed to Hamburg to inspect the Entente merchant ships in German ports. The Entente are demanding the surrender by December 17 of all interned merchant steamers and ships condemned by Prize Courts, also all vessels of war, including submarines and river craft, which have been just completed or are under construction. Germany protests that this goes beyond the armistice terms.

DESTRUCTION BY ENEMY.

A Paris message states that the Northern Railway Company reports the retreating Germans destroyed 1731 bridges, 337 stations, and practically the whole of the telegraphic and telephonic lines. Tracks were demolished in six-mile strips, and timed mines are still exploding.

ENTENTE AND THE SOVIETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

The Berlin correspondent of the "New York Times" telegraphs that officials who have returned from the Armistice Conference at Spa said that a demand would probably be made in the form of an ultimatum declaring that the Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils must be dissolved because they are endangering German economic conditions to such an extent that the Entente's demand for indemnities could never be fulfilled. Occupation of Germany by Allied troops will be threatened unless the councils dissolve.

NOTES TO ALLIES.

A Washington report says the United States has formally notified Germany and Austria that America does not desire to receive further Notes. All such Notes in future must be addressed to the Allies.

TRIUMPHAL ENTRY.

METZ AND STRASSBURG.

Scenes of indescribable joy marked the occasion of President Poincaire's ceremonious entry into Metz. The President, accompanied by Lord Derby (British Ambassador), and other diplomats, was received by Marshal Foch, Marshal Joffre, General Petain, Sir Douglas Haig, and General Pershing. A moving moment occurred when M. Poincaire publicly clasped and embraced M. Clemenceau. American and French troops participated in an imposing parade, after which a procession marched through the city, which was elaborately decorated. The populace pelted the carriages with flowers.

President Poincaire arrived at Strasburg to-day, and was met by the municipal authorities, ministers, Senators, and Deputies, Marshal Foch, General Petain, and Field-Marshal Haig. The Mayor handed the keys of the city to President Poincare, who declared that France would never give them up.

BRITISH REACH RHINE.

Sir Douglas Haig, in a communique, states: The British have reached the Rhine, between Cologne and Godesberg.

A message from Aix-la-Chapelle says a British detachment made its entry into Cologne, which was effected, two days before schedule time, in response to the Burgomaster's appeal to hasten the occupation of the city in order to bring about a cessation of disturbances. The Soviet had tried to overthrow the civil authorities.

GERMAN SAVAGERY.

FRENCH PRISONERS SHOT.

A Zurich message says a report from delegates of the Spanish Embassy states that nine French prisoners at Landensals Camp were shot point blank and killed by Germans. Fifteen others were wounded. The report adds: "The prisoners' behaviour in nowise justified this savagery."

THE "BLACK HOLE."

PRISONERS' HORRIFYING SUFFERINGS.

Some of the prisoners of war give horrifying details of the Black Hole of Lille, a huge underground cavern in Fort MacDonald, where 270 men were confined for five weeks in an unspeakable state of neglect, famine, and disease. They had no clothing or covering except that in which they left the battle-field. They were only allowed in the upper air for 10 minutes daily. Twenty were taken to the hospital suffering from dysentery. Vermin had to be scraped off their clothing with knives. The place was not cleaned during five weeks. The food was so foul that it could not be eaten. The men practically went mad, and used to lie on the ground killing vermin and singing hymns. Men used to fight to reach a latticed window 10 feet above the floor to get air, and men were compelled to bathe their wounds with coffee.

SOUTH AFRICA.

ENEMY ALIEN POLICY.

CAPETOWN, Dec. 9.

Mr. Burton, Minister for Railways, speaking at Ladysmith, announced that the Wheat Conservation Act which enforces a mixture of maize will be withdrawn in January.

Referring to the demand for the repatriation of enemy subjects, he said that interned enemy subjects would not be released before peace terms had been agreed to. He sympathised with the general indignation manifested over the enemy's conduct, but it would be impossible to agree to the demand for indiscriminate repatriation. Many Germans had settled in South Africa under Government immigration schemes who generally had been law-abiding. They should remember the probability—he might say the certainty—before long of the incorporation in the Union of new territory, the inhabitants of which were mainly German. It would be wrong and unwise by a policy of revenge to create a spirit which would further complicate South Africa's difficult problems. The Government had decided, unless the peace terms precluded, to repatriate enemy subjects who wished to be repatriated, also enemy subjects and British subjects of enemy origin whose conduct had caused them to be regarded as a danger to the State. Naturalised enemy subjects who wished to be denaturalised would be naturalised before repatriation.

Regarding trade restrictions, he declared that the only sound line was to take such precautions as were possible for the security of South African trade, and developing their resources in co-operation with other parts of the Empire.

A Johannesburg message states that a conference between the executive of the Chamber of Mines and the Federation of Trades unanimously approved of the principle of a board of reference as a system for settling trade disputes.

CAPTURED COLONIES.

At a mass meeting of citizens of Johannesburg a resolution was unanimously carried demanding that the captured colonies should not be returned to Germany, and that Germans in the Union be repatriated.

The Governor-General, addressing 10,000 natives in Johannesburg at a thanksgiving service for peace, said that one result of this war was that under no circumstances will the territory which was once German West and German East Africa be given back to Germany.

DEMOBILISATION SCHEME.

Mr. Hughes has requested Lieutenant Burchell to undertake the task of carrying out the demobilisation scheme of securing positions in industrial factories for Australian soldiers desiring training in special trades, pending their repatriation.

A JUST PEACE.

CONSCRIPTION IN EUROPE.

ABOLITION URGED.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

Coalition headquarters announce that if the Coalition Government is returned to power it will go to the Peace Conference with the definite intention of proposing the abolition of conscription in Europe.

Mr. Lloyd George, speaking at the Queen's Hall, emphasised that the coming peace must be a just peace. War must be made more difficult, if not impossible. Hence he was an ardent believer in a League of Nations. Those who provoked war must be made to pay the penalty. The more exalted ones were most responsible.

"Democracy," he said, "must so fashion its judgment that kings, emperors, crown princes, and such-like will know in future that if they bring upon earth wretchedness of this kind the penalty will inevitably fall on their own heads.

"The Peace Conference must abolish the gigantic conscript armies which have been the means of tempting rulers to make war."

PEACE CONFERENCE.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S PART.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

The Paris correspondent of the United Press says the Peace Conference is expected to begin on January 3.

Official wireless despatches received in Washington from the George Washington say that President Wilson attended religious services with enlisted men aboard the vessel. The sea has been smooth, and the President is in excellent health. He is expected to arrive in Paris on December 14.

The United Press correspondent on board the George Washington sends a wireless message that President Wilson probably will not sit at the Peace Conference, but will remain in France for consultation.

AMERICAN FLEETS.

NAVAL AND MERCANTILE.

TRADE WITH GERMANY.

VANCOUVER, Dec. 9.

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Times" says that Mr. Daniels, Secretary for the Navy, in his annual report, urged Congress to adopt a three-year naval programme to cost £120,000,000. The programme includes the building of 156 vessels, including 10 battleships, and six battle cruisers. In future, American dreadnoughts and battle cruisers will be armed with 16-inch guns.

In a speech at Baltimore, Mr. Champ Clark, Speaker of Congress, said the United States reached the end of the war with a huge mercantile marine. What were they going to do with it? Before the war Germany was the next best customer of the United States to Britain. If Germany was shut out from raw materials the trade of the United States would suffer. However, he hoped they would find new fields in South and Central America.

Mr. Clark emphatically declared that President Wilson would insist on the freedom of the seas at the Paris conference.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA.

Mr. Bellaski, Government Alien Investigator, has revealed to the Senate that German propaganda sought to create a negro rising in the Southern States, spreading stories that they were the rightful owners of the land, instead of the white people.

WAR NOTES.

BRITISH ARRIVE ALONG THE RHINE.

Sir Douglas Haig's announcement that the British have reached the Rhine between Cologne and Godesberg means that they are taking up their new front along the river due eastward of Aix-la-Chapelle. Godesberg is situated on the left bank of the Rhine, about 20 miles south-eastward of Cologne, and, as the river takes a sharp bend below Cologne, the length of front to be occupied between the two places will be greater than the distance mentioned. Cologne is, of course, the most important city on this sector, and it is here that the Allies will establish one of the three bridgeheads across the Rhine in accordance with the terms of the agreement. Cologne, with a population of 505,000, is the largest town in the Rhenish province of Prussia, and one of the most important commercial centres in Germany. The city lies on the left or western bank of the river, which is spanned by a bridge of boats and an iron bridge leading to Deutz, a suburb on the eastern side of the stream. It presents an imposing appearance. Although some of the older streets are narrow and somewhat gloomy, they contain specimens of domestic architecture dating back to the 15th century. The next town of importance included in the sector reached by the British is that of Bonn, also situated on the left bank of the Rhine, about three miles north-west of Godesberg. It is the seat of a university founded in 1818, and, owing to its picturesque surroundings, was a favourite residence of English and other visitors. It should by this time be experiencing a record influx of English visitors; but as Germany has to bear the cost of upkeep of the Allied armies of occupation these will not prove as profitable as the tourists of earlier days. Communication between Bonn and Beuel, on the right bank of the river, is also maintained by means of a floating bridge. Bonn has an interesting history, as it was one of the first Roman fortresses on the Rhine and the headquarters of several legions. In the Dutch War of Independence, in the Thirty Years' War, and in the Spanish War of Succession, Bonn was repeatedly besieged. Marlborough and other great generals took part in operations against the town. In 1717 the walls of the town were levelled in accordance with the Peace of Rastatt, and on October 7, 1794, the French marched into the town, which was recovered by the Prussians in 1815.

COBLENZ.

Away on the British right, farther southward, American troops are reported to be hastening in trains to Coblenz, where Bolshevism is said to be rampant. Coblenz is to be the site of another Allied bridgehead beyond the Rhine, and the Allies will be anxious to preserve the bridges and railway communications there from damage. This town of 60,000 inhabitants is situated at the junction of the Moselle and Rhine, immediately opposite the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, with which it is connected by a pontoon and an iron bridge. The citizens are especially proud of the memorial to the Emperor William I., an equestrian statue, 48ft high, which was unveiled in 1897. Coblenz appears to have been originally a posting-station on the great Roman road, and did not become a fortress until the fifth century. In 1864, when the Moselle was unusually low, the remains of a Roman bridge were discovered below the Moselle bridge, probably dating from the fifth century. In the Thirty Years' War it was besieged and garrisoned by Swedish, French, and Imperial troops. Marshal Boufflers bombarded and almost destroyed the town in 1688, but failed to effect an entry. The town was taken by the French in 1794, and in 1798 they made it the capital of the Department of the Rhine and Moselle. It again became a Prussian town in 1815. The Moselle bridge, referred to above, spans the Moselle from the northern side of the town to Lutzel-Coblenz. It is 1049ft long, has fourteen arches, and was erected by the Elector Baldwin in 1344. It was restored in 1440, the tower was added in 1833, and the whole structure was widened in 1884. The favourable situation of Coblenz should render it an ideal centre for the Americans, who will be in occupation of the new line in that region.

LATE CABLE NEWS.

PEACE SETTLEMENT.

SENTIMENT IN FRANCE.

LONDON, Dec. 10.

A Paris report says the Syndicalists and Socialists are preparing, partly as a political manoeuvre, a special welcome to President Wilson on his arrival at Brest and at Paris. Other sections of the French equally welcome his visit, but assume that President Wilson regards all questions from the broadest viewpoint.

The conversation of the great majority of French people concerning the settlement shows a notable absence of jingoism. They desire only strict justice, but are determined that peace shall be real and lasting.

EX-KAISER.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

A New York message published in Vancouver states that German newspapers report that the ex-Kaiser unsuccessfully attempted to commit suicide.

GERMANY MUST PAY.

Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, in a speech at Cambridge, said he was of the opinion that Germany should refund the full cost of the war, together with all damage on land and sea. He did not believe a League of Nations would result in a world where armaments were unnecessary. Even under the most favourable conditions a police force was essential to keep order and to deal with undisciplined members. It was inconceivable that the supremacy of the British navy should ever be surrendered. It was inconceivable that the ex-Kaiser, the murderer of Captain Fryatt and others, should go unpunished.

CHANGED TONE.

CAPETOWN, Dec. 10.

A Bloemfontein message states that in the course of an interview, General Hertzog's attention was drawn to a speech he made in 1910, just after the union, which he said:—"The Union is in the position of a brother State having entire self-control of our business, and responsible to ourselves for that control. This modern British colonial policy is full of the fire of self-government, with recognition of the status of equals within the Imperial State, which is being built up. If no longer permitted to remain free Republicans, we will be and will remain free Britons."

General Hertzog replied:—"Since 1910 it has been shown that the so-called self-government is nothing more than a piece of deception. Instead of assuring our freedom and self-government the Union is nothing like that, and was established for no other purpose than to cover the nakedness of our dependence, our fate and the fate of South Africa being decided, not here, but actually in London, by the Imperial Government."

The high opinion he had in 1910 of our then self-government was a mere dream. There was no freedom as he conceived it. He was resolved to exert his utmost efforts to secure actual freedom.

Hertzog was a member of the National Convention which framed the South African Constitution in 1910.

BRAVE NURSE'S DEATH.

Nurse Morrison, of the Adelaide Hospital, has died of pneumonia at the Nurses' Hostel, London. Sir Charles Lucas has arranged for an Australian chaplain to conduct the funeral; also for a detachment of Australian soldiers to attend.

[A cable on October 7 last stated:—One of the latest sufferers from the brutality of Hun airmen is Nurse Morrison, formerly of Adelaide Hospital, who served with the British Red Cross at Mons, Gallipoli, and Servia, and who was awarded the Military Medal. While she was crossing between two wings of a hospital in France a German airman swooped down to within 20ft from the ground, and fired a machine gun, wounding Nurse Morrison in one arm three times. Nurse Morrison is now convalescent in Paris.]

FIRST TWO YEARS OF WAR.

Mr. Asquith, speaking at Lincoln, said he regretted Mr. Lloyd George's deprecatory remarks of the happenings of the first two years of the war. Nobody would ever forget the evacuation of Gallipoli, one of the most skilfully-conducted operations in history. The battle of Jutland gave the enemy such a lesson that his fleet henceforward skulked in his harbours. Mr. Lloyd George dismissed the Somme battles of 1916 with the remark, "After colossal losses we failed to break through." That, said Mr. Asquith, was the paltry and ungracious recognition of one of the finest episodes of the war, which recovered a large tract of territory and enabled the French to hold Verdun.

FRENCH PRESIDENT IN STRASBURG.

A profoundly moving scene was witnessed in Strasburg when the French President, M. Poincaire handed over to the Strasburgers a charter of liberty. Thousands of eyes, including M. Clemenceau's, were dimmed with tears by the President's vivid story of the past suffering, longings, and hopes of the people, especially his reference to the recent compulsion of the Alsatians to wear the German uniform and fight their brethren in beloved France. The nightmare was now over, and the dream of many years had become a fact. "But," said the President, "the one cannot blot out the other. The past still lives to nerve the people for the future. A plebiscite has been taken. Alsace, weeping for joy, has thrown herself on the breast of the mother whom she found again."

THE OLD GUARD.

A Copenhagen message says: Speakers in the Berlin Soviet announced the Government was maintaining a secret body of counter-revolutionary troops, mainly the ex-Kaiser's Old Guard, with a view to suppressing all the extreme elements.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG.

Sir Douglas Haig returns to England on the 20th inst.

SULPHIDE CORPORATION.

The Sulphide Corporation, after providing for taxation and writing off £48,969 of capital expenditure, shows a profit of £236,460 for the year. The contingency reserve fund benefits by £28,000; while £35,900 is carried forward.

RESTITUTION OF RUSSIA.

A Rome message says that M. Koltchak, on behalf of the Omsk Government, undertook to complete the restitution of Russia at the earliest opportunity, and to redeem her financial engagements, including State and foreign debts.

HUNGRY BERLIN.

The "Daily Express" correspondent in Berlin learns from a well-informed source that there is a considerable stock of food in the country, but the peasants refuse to disgorge it except at exorbitant prices. There is no nourishment in the food served in the Berlin hotels. The correspondent decreased four inches in girth in a fortnight, and is always hungry. The poor live on cabbages and potatoes. The bread is uneatable.

INFLUENZA.

POSITION AGAIN IMPROVED.

PRECAUTIONS URGED.

CHAPLAINS TO BE ADMITTED.

Dr. Elkington's statement that the position in Quarantine continues to improve is borne out by the latest bulletin yesterday in regard to pneumonic-influenza. There were no deaths reported during the day—there have now been no fatal cases since Friday night—and no new admissions to hospital. There are now four dangerously ill cases, three seriously ill, and 34 merely ill. There are 64 convalescents in hospital, and 107 more patients have been discharged into clean ground, making a total of 248 convalescents now on clean ground within Quarantine. The patients in hospital now number 105, and the contacts on ship 356.

Only four vessels are now reported to be in Quarantine. Two—the Coromel and Pax, from Noumea—were taken into Quarantine yesterday, but neither has any cases on board.

Questioned yesterday as to the possibility of the disease evading Quarantine through the agency of people being discharged from Quarantine, Dr. Elkington remarked with a note of emphasis: "If there was any doubt we would not release them. The object of the Quarantine service is to control and limit the spread of disease, and not to spread it."

NO EVIDENCE OF CARRIERS.

"Dr. Elkington was interrogated also regarding "carriers." He replied: "We have no evidence to show the existence of carriers in this disease. If there had been carriers Sydney, no doubt, would have been infected by now."

In reply to a further question in connection with the changing of guards at the station, and the reported ability of such men to leave the station when relieved, Dr. Elkington remarked: "The guards on the outer wall are the only ones who are released, and they do not come within a mile of the hospital patients."

CONDITION OF PATIENTS.

Of the four patients dangerously ill, three—Major Padman, and Privates J. Hunt and A. E. Brown—are slightly improved. Of the seriously ill cases Corporal E. Thorne is improving, while Angelino, an Italian reservist, is greatly improved.

All the patients among the military nursing staff are now convalescent, with the exception of Sisters Gregg and Hodgson.

All the Atua patients are now convalescent, while of the Manuka cases only one is ill, but is getting better. The others are convalescent.

RELEASE OF MEDIC.

The Medic is due to release to-night at 6 o'clock, all being well. She has 114 healthy troops on board, apart from the crew. These men will all be released with the vessel. They will disembark at Dalgety's Wharf, Miller's Point, at about 7 p.m., subject, of course, to the ship being cleared by the Quarantine authorities.

HOW TO FIGHT THE DISEASE.

The following recommendations for the avoidance of contagion have been issued by Surgeon-General Gorgas, of the United States, who, it may be stated, cleared up Cuba of yellow fever, and helped largely to make the completion of the Panama Canal possible by the health measures which he brought into effect:—

"1. Avoid needless crowding. Influenza is a crowd disease.

"2. Smother your coughs and sneezes. Others do not want the germs which you would throw away.

"3. Your nose, not your mouth, was made to breathe through. Get the habit.

"4. Remember the three C's—a clean mouth, a clean skin, and clean clothes.

"5. Try to keep cool when you walk, and warm when you ride and sleep.

"6. Open the windows always at home at night; at the office when practicable.

"7. Help by choosing and chewing your food well.

"8. Your fate may be in your own hands; wash your hands before eating."

CLERGYMEN

TO BE ADMITTED ON RIGID CONDITIONS.

GOVERNMENT'S DECISION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. Corser (Q.) asked whether the Government could see its way to modify the instructions which had been given to refuse admission to the Quarantine area in Sydney to ministers of religion.

The Acting Minister for Customs, Mr. Massy Greene, said that for some days past the Government had been trying to find means which would enable such permission to be given without adding to the risk of spreading infection. The Director of Quarantine, Dr. Cumpston, had to-day addressed a minute to him on the subject, in which he had stated that, charged as he was with the responsibility of keeping Australia free from an invasion by a disease which had proved calamitous in other countries, he would be obliged, if the matter were left to him, to decide solely on his own judgment against taking the responsibility of admitting the clergymen. If, however, it were thought fit to relax the instructions, he would recommend that the following precautions be insisted upon to reduce the possibility of spreading infection to a minimum:—Clergymen from various churches for service in the quarantine area should be selected at once and inoculated in advance; they must be available to serve on short notice, and would be admitted only on notification by the quarantine officer that a patient belonging to the Church in question was likely to die in quarantine, and had requested the attendance of the clergyman. He would not be allowed to attend any patients other than those who were believed to be approaching death. The clergyman would be conducted direct to the bedside of the patient, and would be allowed to remain there only as long as was necessary for him to complete his ministrations. He would then be taken to an isolated portion of the quarantine area, where he would not come in contact with any other persons, and he would have to remain there as long as the quarantine officer considered necessary.

The Government, Mr. Greene added, had deliberated on the matter this morning, and had decided to admit clergymen under those conditions, rigid as they were, and instructions had already been given to put them into operation.

In answer to a request by Dr. Maloney (Victoria) for the names of any persons who had been allowed to visit the quarantine grounds in Sydney and to leave it before the expiration of the usual quarantine period, Mr. Greene said that he did not think anybody had been allowed to do that. A portion of the quarantine area was clean, and the administrative officers were situated in that area. The quarantine officer visited the administrative officers, but not the area where it was possible for the disease to be present.

Later, the adjournment of the House was moved by Mr. West (N.S.W.) to discuss the action of the Government in refusing to allow ministers of religion to enter the Quarantine Station at Sydney.

The Acting Minister for Customs, Mr. Greene, in reply, said that the Government had had no thought of politics in the matter, and no thought of wounding the religious susceptibilities of anybody. The precedent was already laid down and administered for five years, that in no circumstances should ministers of religion go into the quarantine area. The Government was doing its best under the unprecedented conditions to mitigate the severity of the conditions under which the people were quarantined.

After debate the motion was lost.

PRIEST IN READINESS.

The following telegram was received last night by Archbishop Kelly from the Acting Prime Minister: "Your telegram the 7th, Government has arranged for admission of clergymen all denomination into Quarantine Station under conditions emergency and with adequate safeguards. Details will be communicated to official heads your Church."

A similar telegram, it is stated, has been received by the Apostolic Delegate.

One of the staff of St. Mary's Cathedral proposes to be inoculated in readiness to proceed to the Quarantine Station in accordance with the arrangement decided upon. He will visit Dr. Elkington this morning in order to discuss the position with him.

PARLIAMENTARY PROTEST.

In the Legislative Council yesterday (before it was known that the Government had agreed to the admission of chaplains) Sir Joseph Carruthers moved:—

That this House regrets that the authorities in control of quarantine in this State have refused to admit clergymen willing to submit to isolation and to all essential regulations to administer the consolation and the aids of religion to patients desiring them. And this House expresses its earnest wish that the Federal Government will reconsider the matter without delay, and make proper provision to admit the clergy under such proper safeguards as may be necessary in the interests of the public health. That these resolutions be presented to the Governor to transmit to the Governor-General.

The debate was interrupted by Mr. Fitzgerald, Minister for Health, who read an announcement stating that Mr. Massy Greene (Acting Minister for Customs) had agreed to clergymen entering Quarantine subject to certain precautions.

Sir Joseph Carruthers agreed to withdraw the resolution.

FATHER O'REILLY'S VIEW.

"SLOGAN FOR ELECTIONS."

Speaking in the Sydney Town Hall last night, the Very Rev. M. J. O'Reilly, C.M., made reference to the exclusion of ministers of religion from the quarantine area. He said that Roman Catholics had many enemies to contend with, but they had been equal to all the enemies who had come into the field. Their motto had been, and he hoped it would continue to be: "Let them all come." Continuing, he said: "A few little petty tyrants representing Australian militarism have attempted in what used to be our own free Australia to deny Roman Catholic people the most fundamental rights that could be claimed by them." He added that they all remembered the indignation which was felt at the Germans' treatment of Nurse Cavell. They were then told that the name of Nurse Cavell would not be forgotten. The Catholics had with them in their protest the Anglican Archdeacon, the Rev. Mr. McIntyre (representing the Presbyterians), and the Rev. Mr. Carruthers (representing the Methodists). It was then, and only then, that the Government repented, but it was a death-bed repentance. They would remember, notwithstanding the repentance, when the next election came.

A Voice: "The Writing on the wall."

Continuing, he said: "We have been provided by our enemies with a watchword, and a slogan cry, viz.: 'Remember Nurse Egan.'"

INOCULATION DEPOTS.

Roughly speaking, over 5000 people have so far been inoculated at the public depots.

The following inoculating depots will be open to-day from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.: Hyde Park Recruiting Depot (also from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.), Manly Cricket Pavilion, Water Police Court, and Randwick, North Sydney, Waverley, Mosman, Annandale, and Parramatta town halls.

Mr. T. H. Nesbitt, town clerk, and Mr. W. G. Layton, deputy town clerk, and other members of the City Council staff, were inoculated yesterday, and arrangements have been made with Dr. Purdy, the City Health Officer, for the attendance of the town hall staff and employees at the Town Hall daily for inoculation purposes between the hours of 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The Minister for Health has arranged for the inoculation of Public Servants in all Government departments.

MASKS AND VEILS.

It is understood that in San Francisco, Dr. Hassler, State Health Officer, has recommended men to wear masks, and women chiffon veils, as a protection against influenza. He is reported to have declared that if every person adopted this practice influenza would quickly disappear. Dr. Woods Hutchinson, also of San Francisco, says that masks and veils have proved extremely effective in fighting the disease.

FURTHER CASES ON THE MAKURA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A wireless message was received by the Director of Quarantine, Dr. Cumpston, to-day, that since the Makura had left New Zealand three members of the crew and one passenger had become affected with influenza. None of the cases was serious. The vessel is expected to arrive in Sydney on Thursday night.

180 CASES ON THE BOONAH.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

On the transport Boonah, which is due at Fremantle to-morrow morning with 920 troops aboard, 180 cases of influenza have been reported by wireless.

The Acting Minister for the Navy, Mr. Poynton, stated in the House of Representatives that the influenza on the transport Boonah was of a light description.

STRANDED AUSTRALIANS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

About 60 Australians are in Auckland, who are unable to obtain passage to the Commonwealth. The majority booked by the Riverina, which the Federal Government requisitioned. Many are financially embarrassed. A committee, on their account, cabled to the Acting Premier of Australia asking what arrangements can be made for them. They also interviewed the Mayor of Auckland, who promised to make representations to the Premier on their behalf.

PERTH, Tuesday.

Wireless news indicates that the outbreak of pneumonic-influenza on board a vessel from South Africa, which is expected to arrive at Fremantle about the middle of the week, is assuming more serious proportions. The disease is evidently spreading rapidly, for, whereas earlier reports gave the number of cases as 96, it is now stated that there are nearly 200 affected.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

The meeting addressed by Mr. Lloyd George at the Queen's Hall to-night was composed entirely of women. The Premier, who met with an enthusiastic reception, declared that he had supported women's suffrage for 30 years. Nothing gave him greater satisfaction than the introduction of the women's vote.

The interruptions proved that the women were not apathetic about the election. It was like the old days of the suffragists.

Mr. Lloyd George agreed that women, having regard to physical conditions, must demand equal opportunities, equality of education, equal pay for equal output, and equality of marriage laws.

COTTON STRIKE.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

The Lancashire cotton strike is in full operation. A hundred thousand spinners and 50,000,000 spindles are idle.

As stocks of yarn are low, the weaving sheds must soon close, throwing idle an additional 200,000 workers.

P. AND O. COMPANY.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

The P. and O. Company's deferred stock was quoted at £424 10s to-day.

PRINCE ALFRED HOSPITAL.

In response to the jubilee appeal for £40,000 to clear the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital of debt and enable the carrying out of various extensions and improvements that are urgently required, there is now about £5000 in hand. The cost of running the institution works out at 2/6 per minute, and, while many people are contributing much larger sums, it is felt that there is no one who realises the importance of the public service rendered by this institution, who will not be proud to be responsible for its upkeep for at least one minute.

In an art union that is being conducted in connection with the appeal, war loan bonds to the value of £1000 are offered as the first prize, and the total value of the prizes is £1806.

During 1917 there were 583 returned soldiers and soldiers' dependents treated at the hospital, and some of the improvements which it is sought to make are expressly for the benefit of returned soldiers.

ROBBERY AT TAMWORTH.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

Wood's store, in Peel-street, was entered between closing-up time on Saturday and Sunday morning, and about £200 worth of jewellery was stolen. The shop was securely locked up on Saturday night, and the front lights were left burning as usual. The thief or thieves entered by a back fanlight, and stripped the shop and front window bare of valuable jewellery, and decamped through the back door. It is thought that the work is that of a novice.

MOREE WATER SUPPLY.

MOREE, Tuesday.

At a special meeting of the municipal council it was resolved to approach the Minister for Works for a loan to enable the council to sink an additional well, as the present town supply is inadequate. The outlook is serious.

OBITUARY.

LONDON, Dec. 9.

The death is announced of Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke, Bart., who married a daughter of the late Mr. Henry Faithful, of Sydney.

SHAW WIRELESS WORKS.

REPORT OF NAVAL COMMISSIONERS.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST SENATOR LONG.

MR. JENSEN ASKED TO RESIGN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The naval report of the Royal Commission on Naval and Defence Administration in regard to the purchase of the Shaw Wireless Works at Randwick in August, 1916, and the purchase of the steamers Emerald in June, 1916, and the Phillip (late Togo) in August, 1916, was to-day tabled in both Federal Houses, together with minutes of the evidence, the whole extending over 95 printed pages.

The commissioners stated that they had reported the facts as they had ascertained them and had commented upon them only as far as necessary to express their opinion about the business administration of the department. The story is then told of the purchase of the Shaw Wireless Works. On December 8, 1914, Father Shaw offered the land, plant, and works to the Postmaster-General's Department, stating that the company had spent £78,000. On January 6, 1915, Father Shaw placed the whole property under offer to the department for £55,000. As a result of the report submitted to the Postmaster-General's Department by a committee of experts, the offer was refused. On March 2, 1915, Engineer-Lieut. Creswell, fleet wireless telegraph officer, submitted that additional wireless accommodation should be provided at Williamstown. No action was taken. On November 1, 1915, the Controller of Radio Service was transferred to the Navy Department. In May, 1916, Father Shaw saw a director of the company, and obtained an option of purchase of the company's interests for £25,000. On the same day that he obtained the option Father Shaw wrote to the Minister for Navy, Mr. Jensen, offering the whole of the plant of the Shaw Wireless Company, Ltd., including the Shaw patents, for £57,000. Rear-Admiral Sir William Creswell, who is not related to Lieutenant, now Commander, Creswell, minuted the file of papers with a recommendation to be considered by the full board. The Navy Secretary could not say definitely whether the Minister's attention had been drawn to this matter, and the Minister stated in evidence that he had not seen it. The matter was not brought before the full board. In June, 1916, Engineer Lieutenant Creswell, after a visit to the works, reported that they were too extensive to be taken over as wireless telegraphy workshops alone. They recommended that they should be taken over as Government workshops for the manufacture and repair of a number of different articles. Engineer Rear-Admiral Clarkson minuted the report with a disapproval of the proposal. A valuation of the machinery and plant was obtained by the Minister from Mr. H. E. Ross, from Messrs. Ross and Rowe, architects of Sydney. On July 12 Mr. Ross supplied the valuation of the plant, tools, and stores at £46,496. He pointed out that the stores had been accepted at the values shown in the stock sheets prepared by the Shaw Wireless people. In the meantime, the valuation of the Department of Home Affairs had been made, setting out the value of the buildings at £10,560 and the land at £3680, a total of £14,240. In his evidence Mr. Ross stated that he could only take the plant without any regard to its utility, and it was nothing to him if he found a grand piano there, or a machine for making ginger beer. He valued that as a machine for a purpose, whether it suited the navy or not. He did not have instructions to value for naval purposes. The Commissioner's report that as a result of insufficient instructions to Mr. Ross a quantity of obsolete plant, stocks, and stores to the amount of £13,000 were included in the valuation. On July 14, 1916, Commander Creswell reported that he concurred with Mr. Ross's valuation, which, together with the Home Affairs valuation, made a total of £60,736. He added that the valuation was based on the works taken over as a commercial concern, but there were a number of expensive articles which were obsolete, and a fair offer to make would be £40,000. This report was submitted to the Minister on the same day. He at once sent for Commander Creswell, and pointed out that this recommendation was inconsistent with the opinion expressed in the early portion of his report, in which concurrence was expressed in Mr. Ross's valuation. As a result of this interview the report was withdrawn, and a new paragraph substituted to the effect that Father Shaw's offer of £57,000 was reasonable, but probably the Government could buy for a lower figure. On the same day the Cabinet approved of the Minister's recommendation for the Shaw Wireless Works to be purchased for £55,000. The Minister stated in evidence, according to the Commissioner's report, that Admiral Clarkson's adverse report, and Commander Cresswell's favourable report, were both before the Cabinet when the decision was made. It appeared, however, that neither the Cabinet as a whole nor any individual Minister was informed that Commander Cresswell had altered his report. On July 18, 1916, Father Shaw accepted the offer, and a few days later he asked that the purchase money of £55,000 be paid to his credit in the London Bank of Australia, Melbourne. On August 19, 1916, a Saturday, Father Shaw withdrew from the London Bank, Melbourne, the following amounts, being part of the £55,000 paid in on the previous day: £25,000, £250, £5300, £7000, and £17,000. The Commission states that it had ascertained in what manner each of the amounts was disposed of. With the exception of the £5300 the money was applied in the ordinary way of business.

The sum of £5300 was, the commission states, drawn by Father Shaw personally, in bank notes of large denominations, and no record of this disposal appeared in any book or document. On the same morning, August 19, 1916, Father Shaw called at Parliament House, and saw Senator Long. Senator Long, the report states, said in his evidence that Father Shaw handed him notes to the value of £1290 as a gratuity in recognition of their friendship. Father Shaw took seriously ill on the Monday following, and died on August 26. An examination of Senator Long's banking account at the Commonwealth Bank showed that he paid in on September 4 £2400. When questioned he stated that the £1290 received from Father Shaw formed part of this money, and that the balance comprised winnings in betting transactions on August 19 and September 2, but he could give no particulars of the wagers or the bookmakers. The commission reported that, in its opinion, the whole of the £2400 was received by Senator Long from Father Shaw as consideration for political influence used, or believed by Father Shaw to have been used, or represented by Senator Long to have been used by Senator Long in connection with the purchase of the Shaw Wireless Works. The fullest inquiry possible was made by the commission, but the evidence, it was stated, did not disclose that the Minister or any person other than Senator Long received any portion of the £5300 in question. The Minister's explanation, according to the commission, of the reason for the purchase was summarised as being due to the necessity to ensure the safety of transports, and that, as a war measure alone, the purchase was, in his opinion, justified. He did not refer the purchase to the full Naval Board, because he had already obtained the opinion of the expert member, Rear-Admiral Clarkson, and in his opinion Clarkson's objections were mainly on the question of policy, and the policy of the Government had already been determined, while he obtained the advice of Commander Creswell and Admiral Clarkson. He took upon himself the responsibility of recommending the purchase, which in his opinion was justified.

THE FINDINGS.

The commission summarises the salient facts of the transactions as they ascertained them as follows:—

(a) Father Shaw was confident before the offer was made that the sale would be effected.

(b) Senator Long drafted the offer.

(c) The Minister disregarded the advice of Engineer-Rear-Admiral Clarkson, the third naval member, who was the engineering expert on the Naval Board, and acted on the advice of an inexperienced subordinate officer.

(d) The Minister failed to ascertain why the Postal Department had previously declined to consider the purchase of the work.

(e) The instructions given to the valuer were insufficient from a business point of view, and the valuation was accepted without inquiry as to the method and basis of valuation.

(f) The valuation merely represented the cost of replacing the works on that date with certain deductions for depreciation and obsolescence, but without consideration of the utility of the plant to the department or the nature of the lay-out of the works.

(g) The only check on the valuation was the presence of Commander Cresswell, an officer who had no training or experience in such matters.

(h) Commander Cresswell reported that numbers of expensive patterns and dies and electrical apparatus were obsolete, and should be taken only at the value of raw material.

(i) The manager estimated that obsolete and useless machinery and stock, valued at £13,000, were included in the valuation, and paid for by the department.

(j) After an interview with the Minister, Commander Cresswell withdrew his recommendation to offer £40,000, and substituted an opinion that Father Shaw's offer of £57,000 was reasonable.

(k) The alteration of Commander Creswell's report was not disclosed to the Cabinet when the purchase was being considered.

In conclusion, the opinion was expressed by the commission that the works were purchased at a price much in excess of the value at which they might have been obtained, and that the valuation of one man should not have been relied upon in such a large transaction.

PURCHASE OF VESSELS.

The report proceeds to refer to the purchase of vessels. The steamer Emerald was offered for sale to the Navy Department in April, 1916, by Messrs. Cowper and Sons, Melbourne, for £6000, or an offer. The Minister for the Navy, Mr. Jensen, minuted the file "No further action to be taken." On May 25, 1916, the steamer was offered for hire to the Navy Department by Messrs. Croker and Croker, of Melbourne. On June 8 an inspection was made by the Minister and Acting Director of Naval Works, Mr. Swan, who reported that the vessel appeared to be in good order, and that an expenditure of about £1000 would be necessary before the vessel could be properly passed by the naval authorities. On June 8 the Minister directed that an offer of £4500 be made for the vessel, and on the next day the agreement was signed. When Admiral Creswell heard of the purchase he saw the Minister and offered his resignation in protest. On July 4, 1916, a survey was made by three naval officers, and the report was that an expenditure of £5000 or £6000 would be necessary before the boat would be suitable for a tugboat for the naval bases or as a patrol boat for Thursday Island, and that in view of the low horse-power it was doubtful whether the vessel would be any good as a tug. On October 17 the Director of Naval Works reported that the trial of the Emerald was not satisfactory, and that the vessel be transferred to the Henderson Naval Base, W.A. This was approved by the Minister, and in due course the vessel was sent to Western Australia. The cost of running the vessel was £250 a month.

With reference to the purchase of the steamer Phillip (late Togo), the Commission reports that it was offered to the Navy Department by W. Cowper and Sons, Melbourne, for £7500. The offer was declined, the vessel not being considered suitable. Three months later, the Acting Director of Naval Works, Mr. Swan, advised the Naval Secretary that the Minister, Mr. Jensen, had instructed him to have the vessel inspected by Mr. Duff, and that all negotiations were to run through a firm of merchants named Broomby and Dent, of Launceston. At the end of July, 1916, the Acting Director of Naval Works reported that Mr. Duff, naval and civil engineer, considered the value to be £7500, and on the same day an urgent telegram was received from Broomby and Dent repeating the offer of sale for £7500, and this was accepted by the Minister. The bill of sale showed that Mr. J. J. Broomby paid £7000 to the Launceston Shipping Company, registered owners, and immediately transferred it to the Government. On May 19 the Director of Naval Works directed attention to the unsuitability of the vessel for towing work, and suggested that it be transferred to another department. It was offered the Quarantine Department and refused. Tenders were invited in July, 1918, for the purchase of the vessel, and offers were received for £1000 and £305, but these were not accepted. The evidence showed that the Emerald and Togo were unsuitable for the department at the time of purchase, and that the principle adopted appeared to have been to purchase first and test afterwards.

The concluding words of the report are: "We do not consider it to be within the terms of our commission to do more than report the facts we have ascertained, together with our opinion as to the business methods and administration of the departments as disclosed in the transactions under review."

STATEMENT OF ACTING PRIME MINISTER.

After dinner, during the debate on the War Precautions Bill, the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Watt, obtained leave to make a statement. Mr. Jensen at this time was sitting with the Ministers.

Mr. Watt said:—"The Cabinet has carefully considered this report yesterday and to-day. It gave Mr. Jensen full opportunity of presenting his views upon the issues involved. Ministers, after deliberation, adopted the conclusion of the commission, that there was no evidence to connect Mr. Jensen with the receipt of the money in connection with the acquisition of the Shaw Wireless Works, but decided that the finding of the commission, and the matters disclosed in the report rendered it undesirable that he should remain a member of the Government. The Government has consulted the chairman and secretary of the commission, and the law advisers of the commission as to whether further investigation of any kind would elicit any additional information relating to this transaction, and in each case the answer was an emphatic negative. Mr. Jensen has intimated to me that he considers he has been exonerated of wrong-doing, and that he does not intend to resign from the Government. With the unanimous approval of Ministers I am taking, without delay, the necessary steps to arrange his retirement from the Government. I am in communication with his Excellency the Governor-General, and am informing the Prime Minister of the action taken as to the finding of the commission. With respect to Senator Long, the Cabinet further determined that eminent counsel be asked to consider and advise whether the evidence taken discloses any facts which would justify or demand action in a court of law, and, further, to advise as to the powers precedent and procedure of Parliament in cases of this character. The recommendation of the commission with respect to the disposal of the work had been referred to the Naval Board for consideration. Pending completion of the action with respect to Mr. Jensen, Mr. Massy Greene will continue to administer the Department of Trade and Customs, and Senator Russell will officiate as President of the Board of Trade."

The leader of the Opposition (Mr. Tudor) moved the adjournment of the debate, but Mr. Jensen rose, and there was a demand for him to be heard, and Mr. Tudor withdrew his motion.

Mr. Jensen said: I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that I had no idea of the deliberations of the Cabinet which have just been read out by the Acting Prime Minister. Recently a serious statement was made concerning my honour and integrity. Without any hesitation on my part I asked the Prime Minister to relieve me of my administrative duties at the Customs Department pending an inquiry, and the report thereon. I say without hesitation that I have carefully gone through that report. I was present the whole of the time at the inquiry, and I want to state that the summary of the facts as given by the Commission is not, in my opinion, in accordance with the evidence that was taken. I am talking now in relation to my administrative work in the Naval Department. I have been absolutely exonerated by the Commission of any wrong-doing or corruption. There is no doubt about that—(Cheers)—but I have been attacked by the Commission for carrying out the policy of the Government of which I was a member. I took it on myself, not at all times, not to comply with the directions of even a Rear-Admiral. (Opposition cheers.) That Rear-Admiral by whom I am attacked had written a certain minute on a certain piece of paper. There was a proposition to look into the question of taking over a certain industrial concern, but he minuted that the industrial concerns run by the Government had not been a success, and that he was opposed to them, and he was opposed to taking them over because Commonwealth-owned industrial concerns had not been a success. I was a member of the Government elected by the people not a year before wherein that was a portion of the policy submitted to the people of Australia—the nationalisation of industry—and I took it upon myself not to be tied down by the Naval Board, which could control me as an executive minister and defy the policy of the then Government. That is what I am blamed for by the commission, because I dared to go outside the minute by a naval officer. I want to say that I was under cross-examination for several hours by one of the most eminent lawyers in Australia, and I want members to read my evidence in conjunction with that cross-examination. I say fearlessly that I was not shaken in any way by that barrister in regard to my action whilst I was Minister for the Navy. I fear nobody. But what has happened? This commission has pointed out certain little things in my administration and magnified them to the greatest extent possible. I want every member to read carefully the whole of the evidence before coming to any conclusion in regard to myself. I have explained all these things to the Ministry during the last two days but they wanted my resignation. They will not get it. I will not give it to them even if the Government says they can put somebody in my place at my department. I say I do not know whether they have the power to do it as long as I am a member of the Government. This is the first I have heard of such a decision as has been read out now. Within the next few days I hope to get an opportunity, when I shall have plenty of time to state my case from every aspect, and I feel that I can state a case, after which I shall get the sympathy of members of both sides of the House. I fear nobody, and I have done no wrong. That is all I will say at this juncture. (Cheers.)

On the motion of Mr. Tudor, the debate was then adjourned.

SENATOR LONG.

On the motion for the adjournment of the Senate, Senator Long (Tas.) asked that before the Government consulted counsel about his association with the purchase of the Shaw Wireless he should be given an opportunity to make a statement to the Senate.

Senator Millen replied that the Government would be glad to give the same consideration to any statement submitted by Senator Long, as it had given to everything else connected with the matter.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

CLOSING THE SESSION.

Last night was private members' night in the Legislative Assembly. It was also the last night of the session. The Government was strongly desirous of getting the principal business of the day—the Public Service Board Appointment Bill—through the House, and the Premier made an appeal to the Opposition to restrict their questions to a minimum. Ministers were loth, he said, to ask for notice of questions on the last sitting of the House, when it was unlikely that the notice would be effective. The time occupied by questions and private members' business lasted from 3 p.m. until after 6 p.m. At this stage the Government applied the closure to the preliminary stages of the Public Service Board Appointment Bill to allow an opportunity for counsel to address the House on behalf of the Public Service Board. These proceedings are reported in another column.

Mr. Price claimed privilege in order to move that the publication of the Public Service Royal Commissioner's reports, with the concurrence of the Government, before presentation to Parliament, was an abrogation of the rights and privileges of members of the House.

The Speaker said he could not regard the motion as a matter of privilege.

The Attorney-General told Mr. Keegan that the police had reported that it was necessary to handcuff 40 odd men who had been arrested at a two-up school at the Glebe. As it was, said Mr. Hall, some of the men slipped the handcuffs and got away.

The Premier told Mr. Doyle that the question of the reduction of the alcoholic strength of beer was under the close attention of the Minister for Public Health.

Answering Mr. M'Kell, the Minister for Works and Railways, Mr. Ball, said the Railway Commissioners had arranged to receive a deputation on the question of the recent increases in railway freights and fares.

The Premier told Mr. Buckley that if the N.S.W. Royal Commissioner's report called for the early assembling of Parliament, which was quite conceivable, the Government would not hesitate to call Parliament together at once.

TRAM MEN'S GRIEVANCES.

Mr. Buckley asked the Premier if he would consider the appointment of a Royal Commissioner to inquire into the grievances of employees of the Tramway Department. A strike was being mooted in the service.

The Premier said the information before the Government did not bear out the statement at all, neither as to the prospects of a strike nor as to the volume of the discontent. "The attempts made to call meetings and foment a strike have been singularly unsuccessful," added Mr. Holman. The Premier further asked for particulars of a few sample cases of discontent. If they were supplied he would personally attend to their investigation.

RIVERSTONE MEATWORKS.

The leader of the Opposition, Mr. John Storey, asked if it were true that the Government was irrevocably committed to the purchase of the Riverstone Meatworks, at a cost of from £150,000 to £170,000. If so, had the Government considered the suitability of the State Abattoirs at Homebush, on which over £1,000,000 had been spent?

Mr. Holman said there was no truth in the statement. There never had been, and there was not likely to be. It was true that a proposal had been made and inquired into, but the matter never got beyond that stage.

WATER SHORTAGE.

Answering questions by Mr. Ley and Mr. Bruntnell about the shortage of water in the Hurstville, Kogarah, Prospect, and Sherwood districts, the Minister for Works said the maximum capacity available was 55,000,000 gallons per day. On the days when the shortage was complained of—December 7, 8, and 9—a total of 60,000,000 gallons had been drawn from the reservoir. The water had not been cut off, said Mr. Ball; the supply simply failed to meet the great demand.

At 11 p.m. the House adjourned until 4.30 p.m. to-day.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

CONCRETE HOUSES.

Fitzgerald, Minister for Health and Local Government, replying to Mr. Ryan, he had seen the statement attributed to Captain Carmichael that concrete houses suitable for Sydney and suburbs could be constructed for £150. He (the Minister) was sure that Captain Carmichael could not be held responsible for such an absurd statement to the effect that concrete houses could be built in Sydney for £150; the flooring, roofing, and joinery would alone cost nearly £150 for a four-roomed cottage. The cost of concrete in this country would probably be double the cost of concrete in Great Britain.

TRUCK ACT.

The Truck Act Amendment Bill passed all stages.

ELECTORAL BILL.

Mr. Garland, in moving the second reading of the Parliamentary Elections Bill, said it was proposed to enable the Government to appoint a commission to set about a redistribution of the electoral districts, and to substitute for the present electoral system the principle of proportional representation.

Mr. Waddell said no system was perfect unless it represented all sections of public thought. He would give parents votes for their children.

The second reading was agreed to, and the bill taken through committee with amendments.

The Local Government Bill was received from the Legislative Assembly and read the first time, the second reading being made an order for Thursday.

The Council adjourned at 11 o'clock until this afternoon.

WATER RESTRICTIONS.

HOSES AND SPRINKLERS FORBIDDEN.

The Water and Sewerage Board yesterday decided to prohibit the use of fixed hoses and sprinklers in the metropolitan area. It was also decided to make the prohibition absolute in regard to the Manly and Illawarra suburbs, so that the use of all hoses and sprinklers in those areas is now forbidden. The Manly area includes Warringah Shire; and the Illawarra suburbs include Rockdale, Bexley, Kogarah, and Hurstville.

Mr. Roseby, the board's secretary, explained last night that the reason for the prohibition at Manly was the fact that the Manly reservoir was becoming depleted; but distribution difficulties had necessitated the restrictions in the other portions of the metropolis.

ADELAIDE MYSTERY.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The body of the public motor car driver, Harold Jaques, who left Adelaide in his car with a passenger on a country trip and disappeared, was discovered buried under some soil in a garage at Port Pirie where his purchased car had been placed. When Jaques left Adelaide he took with him a considerable sum of money, and was on the best of terms with his family.

SERVIAN CANTEEN FUND.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Lord Mayor has forwarded to the Servian Legation in London the sum of £1700, which was raised in Victoria in response to the appeal of Miss Olive Kelso King, for funds with which to establish a canteen for the Servians. In Sydney the sum of £6761 was raised, thus Sydney and Melbourne have raised £8461 towards the £10,000 asked for by Miss King.

CHAPLAINS AT THE QUARANTINE STATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—There is a phase of this question which has not been touched on by previous speakers and writers. We refer to the expert advice tendered to the Federal Government on the matter. In the following remarks we wish to refer only to things, not to persons.

We are of opinion singly and conjointly that we are standing on firm ground in stating emphatically that the medical advice referred to, excluding all clergymen from ministering to the spiritual wants of the dying, is not only uncalled for, but is absolutely lacking in solid support, either from bacteriological science or common sense. The ministrations of a priest, either on the score of close propinquity or prolonged contact, are not calculated to specially favour the infective process, as the experience of mankind amply demonstrates. Neither is there any reason for believing that the present disease has laws of infection peculiar to itself, and this is no less true because it happens to be a three-type disease—influenzal, pneumonic, and septicaemic. We are, etc.,

JOHN FLYNN, B.Sc., M.D.
WALTER F. BURFITT, B.Sc., M.B., Ch.M.

FEDERAL SESSION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. Considine inquired whether the Government, instead of imprisoning the representative of the Russian Soviet administration in Australia, would follow the precedent established by the Imperial Government, and facilitate his departure from Australia, as desired.

The Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Watt: I do not know anything about a representative of the Russian Soviet administration in Australia. I do know that a person named Simonoff was tried for a breach of the War Precautions Act regulations and was fined, or in fault ordered to be imprisoned. The circumstances of his case are not similar to those of M. Litvinoff, in London. The latter had not offended against the Defence of the Realm Act in Great Britain; as a matter of fact, we did earlier offer to facilitate the departure of Simonoff from Australia, but for some reason he did not go.

Mr. Considine further asked whether the Government would endeavour to remove the embargo placed on the departure of M. Simonoff by the refusal of the American Consul to vise his passport?

Mr. Watt asked for notice.

Dr. Maloney (Vic.) asked whether instructions would be given that the best deck space available on troopships should be reserved for those returning officers and soldiers alike who had been severely injured or were ill.

The Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Watt, undertook to convey the suggestion to the Minister for Defence.

Mr. Sampson (Vic.) was informed by the Minister for Price Fixing, Mr. Greene, that the profit allowed to grocers on sugar at present amounted to slightly over 12 per cent., but sugar was always looked upon as a cut line by grocers, and at present was being sold in some instances below authorised prices. The Government had been unable to increase the rate of profit without raising the cost to the public. It was not known that price fixing had forced numbers of grocers out of the trade, on the contrary there had been fewer insolvencies and assignments amongst grocers and storekeepers during the price fixing period than in the corresponding period before price fixing.

Mr. Riley (N.S.W.) was informed by the Assistant Minister for Defence, Mr. Wise, that the Commonwealth was defraying the cost of equipment for all units of the A.I.F. In consideration of this the Imperial Government would after the termination of the war send to Australia the full war equipment, including rifles, for all units. These would be sent out in ordinary merchandise cases, and the rifles would not therefore be in the possession of individual members of the force.

The Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Watt, moved that the House at its rising adjourn till 11 o'clock to-morrow morning, and that up to and including December 19 the House meet at 3 o'clock on Monday and 11 o'clock on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays.

The motion was passed.

In the Senate to-day the Loan Bill, the Distillery Bill, and the Spirits Bill were all read a third time. It was decided to refer the motion on the limitation of debate to the Standing Orders Committee.

It was explained by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) that whilst all men on the home service personnel were being released from their duties as quickly as possible, all men in the service camps had been given 14 days' leave and advised to resume their civil occupations. The small number retained had enlisted for guard and military police duties, and were mostly returned soldiers. The question of discharging men enlisted for garrison artillery was under consideration. The men belonging to the pay corps were necessary, and more were wanted. Any wholesale discharge of men engaged in such work because they were not returned soldiers would be disastrous.

Notice was given by the Minister for Repatriation (Senator Millen) of a bill to provide houses for returned men.

Further consideration was given in committee the bill providing for the payment of bounties on black steel sheets and galvanised sheets.

On clause 3, authorising the Minister under certain circumstances to permit the use of other than Australian bar steel, Senator O'Loughlin (S.A.) obtained the insertion of an amendment to provide that such permission should be given by regulation, thus rendering it subject to revision by Parliament.

Progress was then reported.

MEN OF ULSTER.

LOYAL SPEECHES.

M. SHIMIZU'S VIEW OF THE KAISER.

At the twelfth annual banquet of the Ulster Association of New South Wales, which was held at Sargent's cafe, Market-street, last night, the Consul-General for Japan (Mr. S. Shimizu) referred to the ex-Kaiser as "an imperial criminal," who but for the unparalleled victory of the Allied forces, "would now have had his savage and inhuman clutch upon the fair throat of civilisation. All hopes of liberty and progress would have been beneath the iron heel of German kultur."

The president, Mr. C. W. Oakes, M.L.A., proposed the toast of the King, who, he said, was never more secure on his throne than he is to-day.

In responding to the toast of his health, the Governor, Sir Walter Davidson, said that he was proud of his Irish ancestors, and he was proud to be among Ulstermen. For 300 years his ancestors had been born and bred in Ulster. The Ulstermen had been very active in setting the world going. They were the real pioneers of America, although this honour had been attributed in literature to those of other climes; but that was because they were massacred by the Redskins, and they were written up by the good people of Boston, who had acquired a habit of writing books. In more modern times the Ulstermen went to America and brought back fabulous fortunes just as they did in Australia. Recently he had consulted two of his ministers in regard to attending the races at Randwick during the war. They were the wisest men he had ever known, but unfortunately they had agreed with him. One of the ministers remarked that his presence would be necessary to see that the totalisator worked properly, and the other pleaded that the Randwick course was part of his constituency. He would not divulge the name of either of the ministers. (Laughter.) "But I am going to see the Summer Cup run on Boxing Day," concluded his Excellency amidst much applause.

Proposing the toast of "The Empire and the Allies," Mr. D. Storey, M.L.A., appealed to his hearers not to have anything to do with goods of German manufacture. He had heard it said that the victors should be generous, but he maintained that justice must be done, and those responsible for heinous crimes must be punished. The Commonwealth Government could not stop goods coming from any foreign country after peace had been declared according to the amity of nations, but it would be for the merchants and the people themselves to do what they pleased; let them teach the Germans a lesson that they are not likely soon to forget.

Responding to the toast, the Consul-General for Japan (Mr. Shimizu) said they all heartily rejoiced that the approaching Christmas would see the nations of the world much nearer to the ideal of what Christmas meant than its four blood-stained predecessors. When tidings were reaching us daily, from unimpeachable sources, of barbarities practised by a beaten enemy upon helpless civilians and prisoners of war, they could but shudder at the imagination of what would be occurring all over the world to-day had the final tide of battle turned in favour of the German arms. That fate had happily been averted by the successful efforts and unparalleled victory of the Allied forces. Loyalty and patriotism had been called upon amongst all the Allies, and nobly responded to. But if the opinion of that great English writer, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, might be accepted, it had been responded to by no one with greater cheerfulness and courage than by the men of Ulster. He concluded his remarks by quoting the words of his Majesty the King when speaking only a few days ago in France about the effects of the alliance of the British and French peoples. The speaker expressed the hope that the same sentiments would not be confined to the British and French alone, but would extend to all the Allies. On that occasion his Majesty said:—"They have created a union of hearts, an identity of interests, that I trust will ever grow closer, and contribute materially to the consolidation of peace and the advancement of civilisation."

NATIONALISM.

PROBLEMS FOR THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Some of the problems which confront the statesmen of the world, now assembling in Paris to take part in the Peace Conference, were described in an interesting manner last evening by Dr. Radford, Bishop of Goulburn. He delivered a lecture entitled "Peace Problems of European Nationalism" before a large gathering in the Education-building, under the auspices of the Empire Literature Society. Mr. George Earp, M.L.C., president of the society, was chairman.

The lecturer said that this war was going to resolve the claims of some nations to become States. But every State was not a nation. The German Empire was a great State, but not a nation. It was fringed with alien elements which it had not assimilated, and which it must lose. The British Empire also was a State, but not a nation. Yet, paradoxically, it was the most national of all nations. Scottish and Welsh were, first of all, British—even Australia was proud to fly the Union Jack over the national ensign. Why? Because Britain had somehow learned to provide national motherhood—to permit the growth of nations within her own body. It was not in accord with exact scientific or technical teaching, but it was a moral fact. "A State is a nation with a body, and a nation is a State with a soul," was the lecturer's summing up. Germany and Britain provided a striking contrast. In Germany the nation made the State, and the State marred the nation. In Britain the State and the nation were making and remaking each other, social and political processes reinforcing each other, and the process was still going on.

Even a popular autocracy was the negation of a nation's true life.

In 1816 the nations ignored political democracy, with evil results. In 1919, industrial democracy would be knocking at the doors of the conference chamber and demanding a voice. He would say no more than that. In 1816 nationalism was sacrificed to the supposed claims of the balance of power. In 1918 the tendency was to go dangerously to the other extreme, and give nationalism all it thought it should have. Nationalism must make concessions. He accepted Gilbert Slater's definition: "Nationality is the result of the possession of a common body of thought, which inspires common emotion, and a man is of the nationality to which he thinks and feels he belongs."

It was on such a basis that the Peace Conference should attack the task of redrawing the map of Europe. In some cases, the course seemed clear. Schleswig, being inhabited by Danes, should go to Denmark. Holstein, being almost wholly German, should remain German. It would be difficult to ascertain the wishes of the people of Alsace and Lorraine, certain portions of which had been "packed" by Germans, but the natural frontier, without doubt, was the Rhine. The Trentino, unquestionably should be Italian. These were simple propositions.

IRELAND'S HOPE.

The Very Rev. M. J. O'Reilly, C.M., delivered an address in the Sydney Town Hall last night entitled "Ireland's Case for the Peace Conference." He said that no living Irishman was popular unless he was a disgrace to his country. A genuine Irishman and lover of his country became popular when he was dead. So it was with the late John Redmond. When he died they said to the Sinn Feiners, 'Why are you not moderate like Redmond, and why are you not like that man who is so revered.' The speaker said that when the Sinn Feiners were dead the people would, no doubt, rise and erect a monument to their memory. There was never such a united Ireland as had been occasioned by the stupid malignity of its enemies. The soul of Ireland was safe. The Irish people took the rebels to their hearts, not because they broke the law, but because they considered, rightly or wrongly, in a period of great injustice that they alone represented all law, viz., equal rights for all. Referring to the Peace Conference, he said that his hopes for Ireland at that conference were not too rosy. If any were to say to him what was to be the hope of Ireland he would reply, "the indomitable spirit of the race." He added that he was not an optimist with regard to the Peace Conference, but if there was an optimist in the audience he would say let that person give a lecture on the subject.

INTERSTATE CRICKET.

SPORTING.

The course proper at Randwick was in use for training purposes yesterday morning, the going was fast, and a number of horses were out for useful exercise. Some good gallops were recorded, the best of which was credited to Greg, who covered a mile and a quarter in the record time of 2m 11s. He was picked up by Silent Way at the six-furlong post, whence they came home in 1m 16½s. The previous track record for a mile and a quarter was reduced by a second. Arch Marella, assisted over the last five furlongs by a mate, cast a mile behind in 1m 46s. Trillamah got over a similar distance in 1m 46s, and Marcantonia and a companion were 1m 46½s over the journey. Lingle and Football were out for stout striding work, and Wedding Day was not extended over a mile in 1m 51½s. Garabaldi slipped over nine furlongs in good style. Kenilera had all the better of Ballam at the close of a mile in 1m 48s, and Bee ran a strong round of the track. The best sprint of the morning was six furlongs in 1m 18½s by Delinacre, who was assisted by Mucilage; Theovil covered a like distance in 1m 19½s, and The Elect, First Rain, and Belinda each made the trip in 1m 20s. Steady work was put in by Amberlown, Peat, Speedfast, Moulin Rouge, Ardrossan, and Lord Disgrace, while Tom Splendour, Irish Guard, Bruyere, Lothian, Goonhilly, Dungannon, and others sprinted in good style. FIRES ON S.S. BURWAH.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

During the last voyage of the Burwah, from Melbourne to Rockhampton, via Brisbane, two fires were discovered in the coal bunkers, but were extinguished without damage to the ship. While crossing Hobson's Bay smoke was observed issuing from the midships part of the bunker. The fire was quickly extinguished by playing water on the coal. On the arrival at Rockhampton, smoke was again observed issuing from the bunker, but again the danger was averted by placing water on the coal.

AUSTRALIAN FLEET.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The arrival of the Australian fleet in these waters by the end of next month is very probable.

FINANCIAL.

STATE INCOME TAX.

A little over a month ago we drew attention to the possibility, following on the amendments made in the law of income tax, altering the year of taxation, of income tax being charged twice on one period of six months. The double charge will not be levied at once, but there is a possibility of its being levied after his decease on the estate of each taxpayer who paid tax for the year ended December 31, 1917, and who continued to pay tax till the time of his death. It may be as well to repeat the illustration given in our issue of November 2. The income tax year formerly ended on December 31. It now ends on June 30. Take the case of a man who dies on September 30, 1919. Under Section 9 of the principal Act as amended by the Act recently passed, his latest income tax payments would be—

(1) On the year ended December 31, 1917;
(2) On the year ended June 30, 1918;
and his estate could be called upon to pay
(3) On the year ending June 30, 1919;
(4) On 3 months ending September 30, 1919.

Thus there is nothing in the Act to prevent the man and his estate being called upon to pay income tax for three years and three months, although income for only two years and nine months would be received. The argument of the authorities is that the Act would be so administered that in the suppositious case cited there would only be three payments, the last payment being on a period of nine months. It will be noticed that the matter of justice is a matter of administration and not of law. Should a new administrator enter office, there is nothing to prevent his adhering to the strict letter of the law, any understanding to the contrary notwithstanding. Recipients of income who commence paying income this year will not be affected. The difficulty which the Government finds itself in is that while it changes the year of income it must, if it is to preserve its full revenue this year, avoid making the collection on six months' income instead of twelve months' income as hitherto. It would be a simple matter of justice for the Government to embody its intentions in the Act instead of allowing the prevention of injustice to remain a matter for administration.

THREE MONTHS' TRADE.

As in New South Wales so with the rest of Australia imports in September were much above those of September, 1917. Exports, too, were greater. For Australia imports during the month increased by £4,704,775, and exports increased by £2,034,112. For the first quarter of the financial year imports more than doubled, and exports increased by nearly one-third. A comparison of totals is as follows:—

Three months.	Imports. £	Exports. £
1917	11,622,652	14,055,200
1918	23,536,998	18,547,550

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANK.

The report of the Commissioners of the Government Savings Bank of New South Wales for the year ended June 30, shows that deposits exceeded withdrawals by £208,907, and with £1,308,896 interest added to depositors' accounts, the balances of depositors increased during the year by £1,517,804. The previous year deposits exceeded withdrawals by £1,211,066. The comparative smallness of the increase in the past year is attributable to large investments in the war loans by depositors, to the many patriotic calls throughout the year, and to the effects of the strike which caused a material reduction in deposits. The number of accounts increased by 36,986, compared with an increase of 37,598 in the previous year, and the total number of open accounts on June 30 was 783,915. Total amount to the credit of depositors on June 30 was £38,566,993. The proportion of depositors to the population of the State is approximately 2 to 5. The number of branches remains at 132. Sixteen new agencies were established, and 26 were closed, leaving 497 at the close of the year. Of the applications for the fifth and sixth war loans, no fewer than 11,837 applications, for a total of £1,291,931, were put through the bank, out of a total of 86,591 applications for the State. The gross profits for the year were £1,496,735, or £3/17/10.57 per cent. on the average funds. Interest was added to depositors' accounts at 3½ per cent., representing £3/8/1.28 per cent. on the average funds, and £3/10/3.47 per cent. on the average of depositors' balances before the addition of interest on open accounts. Expenses of management amounted to £134,829, or 7/0.38 per cent. of the average funds, compared with 7/4.64 per cent. in the previous year. The net profit was thus £52,706. The policy of substantially writing down bank premises was continued, £45,869 being used for this purpose. This left £6836, and with £29,331 brought forward, £36,167 was carried forward. The reserve stands at £517,000, and the depreciation account at £31,663.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Christmas groceries were in strong demand yesterday. Dried fruits cleared freely. Muscatels, which were in rather short supply, commanded from 1/ to 1/3 per lb, and sultanas, currants, and lexias brought full fixed rates. The market was practically bare of dates and prunes. Tinned fruit also sold well. Peaches brought to 12/, and pears to 11/6. Gooseberries were to be had at 10/9. Some big orders were placed for nuts. Walnuts were quoted at 1/2, and Brazil nuts at 1/6. Candied peel was firmly held at previous prices. Spices were steady. Whole cinnamon realised 1/9, and ground 1/7. Nutmegs changed hands at 1/7, mace at 2/4, cloves at 2/6.

There was no movement in jute goods. Messrs. Hoare, Miller, and Co., writing from Calcutta, stated that on November 9 the mills reduced the working days to five a week instead of six. The mills had also announced that immediately the general armistice was signed they would still further curtail production by keeping their looms working only four days a week. Hessians were very dull. Sellers were beating down the market in an endeavour to get rid of their holdings. It was noteworthy that in spite of the fact that the inquiry from America had been almost entirely absent, the mills had not shown any keenness to sell. Most of the business done was on speculative account. Heavy goods were also dull, and prices had fallen, but to "nothing like the same extent as hessians." Mills were not inclined to entertain offers for specialities, except at high rates. There was nothing doing in Australian cornsacks. Prices for bran bags had declined considerably, and "as the c.i.f. rates were below the maximum at which imports were allowed into Australia" a small inquiry had arisen for near deliveries.

AMERICAN COTTON.

A wireless message received by the American Consul-General in Sydney from New York states that cotton ginned prior to December 1, was 9,563,124 running bales, including 134,150 round bales; 10,170 bales American Egyptian, and 25,741 bales of sea island.

PIG SALES.

A heavy supply of 3585 pigs was forward at the abattoir saleyards yesterday. These comprised all descriptions, but consisted chiefly of porkers. The general quality of the offering was fairly good. There was a large attendance of buyers, but although competition was active, the supply of porkers proved more than sufficient for immediate requirements, i.e., at late rates, as values were generally cheaper. The market was also slightly easier for backfatters and baconers. Prime backfatters made to £8/5/, odd to £12/10/; prime baconers to £4/17/6 (odd higher), good to £4/7/6; prime heavy porkers 54/6 to 58/, good 48/ to 51/6; others lower; prime light 38/ to 42/. Rough and plain porkers were hard to sell even at reduced rates.

MINING.

Extremely quiet conditions prevailed in the market for mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and scarcely more than two dozen sales were listed. Prices for Barrier shares displayed some weakness, but business was very limited. British and Junction sold at lower rates, whilst other concerns were quoted lower. Copper stocks were also lower. Among tin stocks a firmer trend in prices was noted. Carpathia, contg., moved up strongly to 13/10½, and Vegetable Creek recovered to 8/2. Malayan also figured at enhanced rates. Mount Dudley advanced /3 to 7/ among the gold ventures, and Deeps rallied to 14/6.

THE SHARE MARKET.

The following mining sales were listed:—

Copper: Hampden, 14/.

Gold: Mount Dudley, six weeks 6/5, cash 6/10½, two weeks 6/7, six weeks 6/6, cash 7/; Gundagai Long Tunnel, paid, 13/; Edna May Deep Levels, 14/6; Edna May Central, 18/3.

Silver: B.H. Junction, contg, 7/3; Junction North, 14/6; British B.H. (old), 48/.

Tin: Ratrut Basin, 19/; Tongkah Compound, 11/6, 11/4½, 11/5; Kampong Kamunting, 49/6, six weeks 49/6; Vegetable Creek, 8/3, 8/2, 8/2; Carpathia, contg., six weeks, 14/2, cash 14/1, 14/, six weeks 14/, cash 13/10½, six weeks 14/.

VEGETABLE CREEK TIN MINE.

In order that shareholders may readily understand the present position of the company, the directors of the Vegetable Creek Tin-mining Company, N.L., have submitted the following information from reports supplied by the mine manager, Mr. J. Atkinson:—Allen's shaft has given fair returns since the last half-yearly report of an average of about 50lb per cubic yard, and there yet remains about 450 feet of thicker and better quality wash, and a wider lead, which should take about 12 months to extract. In Gordon's shaft the wash has been developed in three localities. There has been good development all along and much remains to be done. In the dip workings some 500 feet from the main shaft a large body of wash of over 100 tons has been opened up, and there is a probability of further extension. In the main crosscut working, which lies between Gordon's and Chandler's shafts, a large body of wash occurs, and is being developed further, with good promise. Chandler's shaft has about had its day, and nothing much can be expected, but some work is still being done.

Operations of the boring plant are still being carried on with varying success, and are sufficiently encouraging to merit perseverance. At present the company is boring on Kennedy and O'Hara's land, of which they have the lease. It is on the Graveyard Creek run, which is supposed to junction with the Vegetable Creek run, below the company's freehold, from which the bore is 1½ to 2½ miles.

The ore reserves at present available are about 243 tons, with another 50 tons or so partially developed in Gordon's shaft. About 300 tons of ore should be obtained from the present aspect of the mine, and an output of 5 to 6 tons per week can be maintained for the balance of the financial year, with a probable extension. In addition an option has been received over a property some distance from Vegetable Creek, and on having it proved the directors have received a report that it contains about 300 tons of tin. The cost of erecting plant and treating this will be considerable. The directors, however, are so satisfied with the value of the property that they have decided to call a meeting of the company at an early date to ask their sanction to complete the purchase. Another property is under consideration, but pending a complete test of the ground the directors do not feel justified in referring to it further for the present.

RATRUT BASIN TIN-DREDGING CO.

The annual report of the Ratrut Basin Tin-dredging Company for the year ended May 31 discloses a net profit of £24,756, after writing off £2364 for depreciation, and providing for working and administration expenses. Four dividends of 1/ per share absorbed £20,000, and a balance of £8212 is carried forward. A supplementary report covering operations to October 31 states that 146 tons of tin oxide, valued at £23,786, was produced. Working costs amounted to £6415, thus leaving a working profit, exclusive of depreciation and head office expenses, of £17,371. Interim dividends totalling £10,000 have been paid during the new financial year. The company's dredge operated continuously during the year. A stock of spares, which will suffice for two years, has been accumulated. A smaller yardage treated during the year resulted in a better recovery of tin, as the following table shows:—

Year.	Hours worked.	Cub. yds treated.	Tin-oxide, Tons.	Val. cub. yd.	Cost cub. yd.

Since the date of the balance-sheet the financial position of the company has been materially improved, and directors have had under consideration the distribution of a bonus in addition to the regular dividends, but they decided to hold available a substantial reserve for extending operations. The chairman (Mr. C. H. Kerry) points out that "when post-war conditions become normal, it is expected that many excellent openings may occur at a time that is likely to prove, for many investing concerns, a period of financial stringency."

NOTES.

The Junction North mill ran 84 hours during the week ended December 7, and treated 1217 tons of crude ore and 847 tons of dump material, producing 311 tons of lead concentrates, assaying 59.2 per cent. lead, 30.4oz silver, and 10 per cent. zinc; and 391 tons of zinc concentrates, assaying 7.8 per cent. lead, 10.9oz silver, and 43.8 per cent. zinc.

The manager of White Crystal tin, reporting under date of December 4, stated that what appeared to be a big body of ore was being opened up on the top of the hill, and assayed 2 per cent. tin. At Stackpool's lease the main shaft has been timbered and secured to the bottom, and preparations are being made to open out north.

The mine manager of the Mount Dudley mine, reporting for the week ended December 7, states that the battery did not run owing to repairs to the pump steam pipe and the installation of the rockbreaker driving gear from the countershaft.

Under date of December 7, the assistant manager of the Block 10 Misima Gold Mines reports by radio telegram as follows:—"October: Crushed 931 tons, worth 22/9 per ton. Treated 745 tons of sands for £676 and 115 tons of slimes for £182."

The manager of the Gundagai Long Tunnel goldmine reported on December 10 as follows:—"No. 1 level, south drive was driven on the channel a total distance of 17 feet; sampling shows values of payable character. No. 3 level, south drive in a total distance of 51 feet from the plat, and carrying a well-defined channel. Considerably more water is making, and the water in the winze is rapidly falling. A big change is coming in. I am confident of improved values within a few feet of driving. Crushing is proceeding satisfactorily; an additional five heads and Wilfley tables are completed, and expected to be running in a few days."

QUEENSLAND MINING YIELDS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The mining returns show that the gold yield for November totalled 9027 fine ounces, valued at £38,344, as against 9978 ounces and £42,384 for November, 1917, thus indicating a further drop of 951oz and £4040 in value. The dividends paid for November amounted to £1379 (Gympie field). For the 11 months of the current year the dividends have aggregated £177,001, contrasted with £242,600 for the 11 months of 1917. The principal returns for last month were: Charters Towers 965oz (last year 1070oz), Clermont 171oz (17), Chillagoe 149oz (164), Etheridge 159oz (338), Gympie 1515oz (1927), Mount Morgan 6029oz (5840), and Ravenswood 35oz (124). The total for the 11 months of the present year show a decrease in the gold yield as compared with the corresponding period of 1917 of 37,952 fine ounces and £158,236 in value.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The vertical isobars over the eastern States, which, on Monday, were responsible for the heat wave conditions, with northerly winds, have, so far been attended at various places inland with the highest registrations, this summer. Indeed, the 120 deg. at Menindie constituted a record for the State, as far back as January, 1909, when Bourke experienced 125 deg., and Brewarrina 122. Since Monday the eastern "high," as also those pressure systems to the westward, has made about 800 miles easting, and although the extremely hot conditions should again be experienced, with squally, northerly winds, the cool squally southerly change will spread generally across the State, and reach the coast by Wednesday. Southerly windsare shown on the chart on the eastern limits of the oncoming "high," over western Victoria and the western border of our State. On its arrival to coastal parts some cloud and showers should occur. Over inland districts thundery developments are indicated, but only of a scattered nature and probably associated with some strong blows with hail. The advancing "high," although not very vigorous, is yet the strongest of some time past, so that its co-operation with the inland existence accompanying or following the heat should be productive of thundery weather in the NE quarter, and strong southerly winds, with disturbed sea on the coast. However, no definite storm system is yet in sight, the tropical "low" over central Australia and western Queensland being almost inactive. Antarctic influences are in evidence over Tasmania and SE Victoria.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally south-west around Tasmania, passing to New South Wales coast; elsewhere smooth to moderate.

SHIP-BUILDING.

BRITISH-AUSTRALIAN SERVICE.

VESSELS NEARING COMPLETION.

The fleets of practically all British-Australian companies have been depleted by enemy action during the war, and most firms are now building new vessels to replace those that have been lost.

It is intimated that five new vessels, two of which are completed, and three launched, are being added to the Commonwealth and Dominion Line. The Naldera and Narcunda, two new liners, have been delivered to the P. and O. Company, while a new steamer for the Federal and Shire Line, is nearing completion. The Clan Line, which has suffered severe losses during the war, has embarked on an extensive reconstruction policy. The following vessels have been completed for this company:—Clan Macbean, 5062 tons; Clan Mackinlay, 6450 tons; Clan M'Master, 6563 tons; Clan M'Millan, 6000 tons; Clan Macvey, 5815 tons; Clan Macvicar, 5876 tons; Clan Malcolm, 5994 tons. The Clan Mathieson, Clan Monroe, and Clan Morrison are now building. There have also been three additions to the British-India Company's fleet.

'A' GOOD PROPOSITION.

If the important operations of the digestive organs are not being carried on with the regularity and harmony which Nature designed, it necessarily follows that a condition of indifferent health will be the inevitable result. Think for a moment what this means. Your personal comfort—your happiness—your business affairs—everything, in fact, which makes life pleasant—will suffer, more or less. For the enjoyment of Good Health is of paramount importance if life in all its manifold activities is to be successfully carried on. It should be the especial aim, therefore, of everyone who values health at its true and high worth to see that the processes of digestion—if out of order—are adjusted without delay. In this connection it should always be remembered that the speedy and certain correction of disordered conditions of the digestive system can be efficiently brought about by the judicious use of

VICTOR TYPEWRITER.

THIS IS WHAT THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS SAY. IT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

Fred. K. Staples, Esq., 4 Victoria Arcade, Sydney.

Dear Sir,—I have personally had eight years' experience of the Victor Typewriter, and at the present time we are utilising a Victor for stencil cutting, which has been in use for the past five years (and as you are aware, has had scarcely any mechanical attention during that period), and continues to give excellent service, maintaining its alignment, clearness of type, and general efficiency.

We have had several other Victors in use covering various lengths of time from four years down to twelve months, and can speak equally favourably with regard to them.

The Victor Typewriter in daily use alongside other standard machines has proved that the cost of upkeep is infinitesimal, and it stands up to all the claims made for it by the manufacturers.

You may utilise this letter in whatever way you desire, and I might mention that it is our intention to instal another three Victor Typewriters at an early date. Yours faithfully,

J. WRAY, GENERAL MANAGER FOR AUSTRALIA.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

AT RANDWICK.

SUNNYSIDE.

A Superb Site and a surpassing outlook, a sequestered spot, easily accessible, on the main road, overlooking the Racecourse, the Western Suburbs, the city, and Centennial Park; a panoramic wealth of variety both by day and at night.

Far back in the early days at the beginning of settlement at Randwick the late Walter Bradley selected for his home this and the land adjoining upon which to build his residence.

Some seven years ago the present owner purchased that portion upon which stands SUNNYSIDE, a substantially-built House of Stone, containing Reception-room, Dining-room, Billiard or Smoke Room, 3 large Bedrooms, Dressing-room, 3 other Bedrooms, Servants' Dining-room, Kitchen, Pantries, Laundry, and other offices. Motor Garage and Stabling.

The Land has an area of close on two acres, and fronts Allison-road, Bradley-street, and Wansey-road, and small Reserve.

The Grounds are laid out in Garden, Tennis Court, and lawns, and its unique position prevents any buildings being erected, destroying the magnificent views. The drive to the city is along the main Randwick-road, or through Centennial Park, which is reached by motor in 15 minutes, or by tram, which is close by, in 25 minutes.

FOR SALE IN ONE LOT, or the House with about an acre, or the Vacant Land in Bradley-street in Allotments, on extended terms, owing to the Owner's early departure abroad; or TO LET on lease.

For further particulars apply to J. E. O'BRIEN, Sunnyside, Allison-road, Randwick.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

I am the Mortgagee of a Charming HOME and extensive Grounds at Hunter's Hill. Within 4 minutes' walk of the Figtree Wharf, on the Lane Cove side or the Villa Maria wharf, on the Parramatta River side. Hunter's Hill is one of the oldest and most charming suburbs of Sydney. Some people, who know no better, think it is a dull, stupid old place. Nothing of the sort. Under the dynamic direction of that patriotic live wire Billie Windeyer, the suburb is advancing by leaps and bounds. Progress is being shown everywhere. The property is close to the church, close to the school, close to the park, close to everything that is desirable. A fine piece of land, 150ft x 300ft. Splendidly built Brick Cottage of 9 or 10 rooms, stables, coachhouse, every convenience. It is suitable for a home, or a hospital, or a college, or a sanatorium.

I can sell it cheap, on the easiest of easy terms. £1300 will buy. Nominal deposit of £50, balance as rent, 6 per cent. interest. Immediate possession can be given. This is a bargain that is unique. Everything is in first-class order and condition.

It is well worth inspection. The Title is Freehold.

WHEN IN 'FRISCO BUYING NEW RECIPES in a surgical store on Market-st, there sat in the window apparently comfortably in an easy chair
A SPLENDID SKELETON OF A MAN.
His legs were crossed at ease, and in one bony hand he held a newspaper, a cigar between splendid teeth, and the other hand pointed to a card on a bony foot directing his continual audience to the words upon it, which were:—

AS I AM
U WILL BE.

WRINKLES.

Wrinkles in general may depend upon an unnatural use of the muscles, but also upon a lack of their use, with the result that the muscles become flabby, sinking below their natural level, and allowing the skin to fall with them, thus causing hollows, furrows, and folds.

It is well known that exercise strengthens faculty, but care must be taken not to over-exert a muscle or a group of muscles. A muscle is built up by gentle systematic massage, but can be rendered entirely useless by rough, unnatural manipulation. If you call I will demonstrate to you the right and the wrong methods.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.
BE VERY CAREFUL ABOUT THE REMOVAL OF THESE BLEMISHES,
as it requires an experienced operator to do this work without scars or marks, and one who has a clear understanding of the skin and electricity. SEVENTEEN YEARS I HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED, and guarantee all my work. Come and have a chat. I will explain fully.
